STATEMENT

Until the rise of scientific philology in the early part of the nineteenth century, the belief was general that Hebrew was the mother-tongue of the languages of Europe. The new science examined and condemned the foundations of that belief. Moreover, it was discovered that Hebrew, so far from being worthy to be considered the mother-tongue of those languages, actually bore no readily discernible marks of even remote kinship with them. As might be conjectured, Biblical scholars did not accept without protest the imposition of these revolutionary doctrines of the new philology. Though the controversy over the matter was earnest and long-continued, strangely the truth was not discovered. Philology, however, seemingly won the day; and to her unmerited triumph may in great measure be indirectly ascribed the discredit into which she has since fallen among her sister sciences.

The conclusion in the matter arrived at by the founders and builders of scientific philology was succinctly stated by Professor James Hadley, who "was, in the opinion of all who knew him most fully, America's best and soundest philologist" (William Dwight Whitney). "In addition to his mastery of the Greek language, he was well versed in Hebrew, Arabic, Armenian, Sanskrit, Welsh, Gaelic, Irish, and the principal modern languages" (Arthur Twining Hadley, in Johnson's Universal Cyclopædia). In his Brief History of the English Language, published in 1864 as a part of Webster's Dictionary of the English Language, Professor James Hadley said: "All etymologizing which assumes or implies a radical affinity between English and Hebrew, English and Finnish, or the like, is, in the present state of philology, unscientific and illusory."

A few years later, in his article on Language, in Johnson's Universal Cyclopædia, William Dwight Whitney said: "It is a favorite subject of effort with some philologists to demonstrate the primitive unity of the Semitic and Indo-European races; and there are many indications outside of language which favor the conclusion; but thus far, at any rate, the language is an impassable barrier." $\dagger$

A still later pronouncement on this question,-a pronouncement very significant because made in a volume (Gesenius' Hebrew Grammar, Oxford, 1898, page 4) which reflects throughout the perfection of Hebrew scholarship of today, is as follows: " . . the vocabulary of the Semites differs essentially from that of the Indo-Germanic languages, although there is here apparently more agreement than in the grammar. A considerable number of Semitic roots and stems agree in sound with synonyms in the Indo-Germanic family. But apart from expressions directly borrowed . . ., the actual similarity might be restricted to imitative words (onomatopoetica), and to those in which one and the same idea is represented by similar sounds in consequence of a formative instinct common to the most varied families of language. Neither of these proves any historic or generic relation, to establish which an agreement in grammatical structure would also be necessary."

[^0]These declarations, coming from the highest ranks in philology, show that the question of possible kinship of the Semitic with the Aryan languages is, on the evidence hitherto produced, practically unanswerable and has ceased to engage actively the attention of serious philologists. At such a time I am pleased to present, in the following pages, new evidence in the case. That evidence need not be here discussed. It will be found to be abundant, unquestionable, and unequivocal. $\dagger$

It should be here observed that, in the works of the old-school philologists (including Gesenius), are to be found Semitic and Aryan words associated as cognate, sometimes correctly. Having not incuriously inspected a few of those old-time etymologies and having found therein nothing of value which had not already occurred to me or which ought not readily to occur to me in the course of an investigation such as this; I deemed it not worth my while to give them further attention. Perhaps in consequence of this decision, the present volume may be found here and there to be regrettably deficient or at times even to have gone astray.

A word should here be said about Basque.§ It has been called "the 'ornithorhynchus' of the linguistic family" (A. H. Keane, Ethnology, page 213); and "has not yet been shown to be related to any other language now spoken in Europe or else-

[^1]where" (Edward S. Sheldon, in Johnson's Universal Cyclopædia, about 1893). It should be remarked that a volume by G. von der Gabelenz was posthumously issued in 1894, showing Basque to be related to the languages of the native tribes of Northern Africa. (See Man: Past and Present, by A. H. Keane, pages 460-2). In the present volume will be found abundant evidence of very close relationship between the Basque vocabulary and that of Hebrew. On the framework of the Basque sentence, see section xr.

SUMMARY EXPOSITION

I.

L(e).-The tenth commandment ends (Exodus 20:17) thus: ". .., nor anything that is thy neighbor's." The last word is here grammatically a predicate possessive (predicate genitive), translating a Hebrew prepositional phrase ( $1(\mathrm{e}) \mathrm{reh}^{4} \mathrm{e}-$ ), in which the preposition is prefixed to its object. Of the Aryan languages, only the Gaelic (including Manx $\dagger$ ) has in this place a prepositional phrase. Moreover, the Hebrew preposition here used is $\mathrm{l}(\mathrm{e})$ and the Gaelic is le. The construction is regular in both Hebrew and Gaelic. It should be remarked, however, that in the latter language re may be used for le and that, before words beginning with a vowel, lis (ris) is used instead of le (re). (See also entry 377 and Genesis $15: 13 ; 20: 7$; 26:20; etc.; Exodus 9:4, 29; 13:12; 19:5; 29:9; Job 12:16; 39:16; Isaiah 44:5; 45:14; Obadiah 21; Habakkuk 1:6; 2:6; Haggai 2:8, 8; Malachi 3:17).

Scarcely less interesting to the philologist and important for ny present purposes is the harmony between Hebrew l(e) and Gaelic

[^2]le (re) when used with the infinitive. In Hebrew, ". . ., infinitives with ...[l(e)] serve to express the most varied ideas of purpose or aim,. . ." (Gesenius' Hebrew Grammar, section 114, f). In Gaelic, "Le, with, placed before the infinitive mood, gives, like pour in French, the idea of intent, purpose, to perform what is expressed by the verb" (The College Irish Grammar, by Ulick J. Bourke, page 113). See especially Ecclesiastes (Dublin, 1827) 3:2-8; Genesis $24: 43 ; 27: 42$; 28:20; Exodus $7: 24 ; 8: 26$ (22); 16:8; $17: 1$; Micah 7:1.
II.

Q=G.-In Genesis 1:5, our English versions read: "God called the light Day." The idiom of the original Hebrew is: "God called Day to the light," with which the Gaelic idiom is identical (in the text, Dublin, 1827; in an explanatory note, Edinburgh, 1807). This is remarkable; but more remarkable, the groundform of the Hebrew word here rendered "called" is qarah and that of the Gaelic is goir,-forms not far apart, especially in view of the fact that "in parts of Arabia, and throughout Northern Africa, it [q] is pronounced as a hard g" (W. Wright, A Grammar of the Arabic Language, volume 1., pages 6, 7). Moreover, the -h in Hebrew qarah is quiescent. These facts and the fact that Gaelic has not stable $h$ independent bring the Gaelic goir very close to Hebrew qarah and caused me to suspect Gaelic g to be the equivalent of Hebrew q. Further investigation confirmed my suspicion. The only exceptions I have met with are in entries 239, 479 (?), 605, 657, 686,. 729.

The expression "to call a name to one" is actually not foreign to English. Thus, one often hears "I called 'hello' to him" or "I called 'thief' to him" or "I called him names"; only, in such a case "calling a name to" is not exactly equivalent to "naming" in the sense of "bestowing a permanent name upon." (For additional examples of the Hebrew and Gaelic idiom, see Genesis $1: 5,8,10,10 ; 2: 19,19,23 ; 33: 20$; Isaiah 62:12,12; Jeremiah 15:16; 19:6; Hosea 2:16 (18); Malachi 1:4).

III.

Gutturals ( $\mathrm{H}, \mathrm{H}^{2}, \mathrm{H}^{3}, \mathrm{H}^{4}$ ). -As said in the preceding section, Gaelic has not stable $h$ independent. It need cause no surprise, then, that radical gutturals (I accept the word as long used in Semitic philology) are regularly unrepresented in Gaelic. (For exceptions, see entries 26, 29 (?), 40, 97 (?), 169, 251, 284, 371, 386, 420, 564).

Radical gutturals (especially $h, h^{2}$, which are comparatively weak) are often lost in the other Aryan languages and Basque. Radical h, $h^{2}$ final $\dagger$ are regularly quiescent in Hebrew (entry 797 contains an exception) and unrepresented in the Aryan languages (but see entry 433) and Basque (but see entries 484, 617, 712). It should here be observed that, among the ancient Hebrews, $h^{4}$ "sometimes had a comparatively feeble sound," which fact may account in part for the exceptionally varying fate of that consonant in the Aryan languages and Basque.

In the Teutonic languages and Latin, radical gutturals may be represented by $h, h w(v), w(v, b, f$, in Latin); or, by $k(c, q)$, $\mathrm{g} ; \mathrm{k}(\mathrm{c}, \mathrm{q}) \mathrm{w}(\mathrm{v})$. I have not noted an example of $\mathrm{gw}(\mathrm{v})$ coming from a radical guttural. I think it probable that $w(v)$, when from a radical guttural, is invariably from an immediately antecedent $\mathrm{hw}(\mathrm{v})$. I conjecture that there are three stages in the development of Latin b or f from a radical guttural: [*hv] \%; v; b or f; that is, that Latin Hibernia (entry 29), for example, was once [*Hihvernia]. The reader should take note that, here as likewise often elsewhere in this volume, I am speaking of sounds, not letters. Thus, when I say f stands for earlier v, as in entry

For illustrations of the changes radical gutturals undergo in the Aryan languages, see entries 29, 235, 243, 270, 286, 519, 564.

In Basque, radical gutturals may be lost (as said above) or may be represented by h, g, k. (See especially entries 29, 102 (?), 228, 568, 776). By reference to Table II., section D., it will be seen that I have not yet found radical $h, h^{2}$ represented in Basque by g or k. In all cases where (in this Summary Exposition) groups of radicals are dealt with, the reader should consult Table II. to ascertain the Aryan and the Basque cognates (I use the word perhaps peculiarly, yet advisedly) of an individual radical.

IV.

Palatals ( $\mathrm{G}, \mathrm{K}, \mathrm{Q}$ ). $\dagger$-Radical palatals ( $\mathrm{g}, \mathrm{k}, \mathrm{q}$ ) have almost the same cognates in the Aryan languages as have the radical gutturals; but, being stronger, are seldom lost (except initial k ; see entries $350,361,367,375$ ) and have the order of the cognates approximately reversed: $\mathrm{k}(\mathrm{c}, \mathrm{q})$, g; $\mathrm{k}(\mathrm{c}, \mathrm{q}) \mathrm{w}(\mathrm{v})$, (?) gw(v); h, $\mathrm{hw}(\mathrm{v}) ; \mathrm{w}(\mathrm{v}, \mathrm{b}, \mathrm{f}, \mathrm{p}$, in Latin). The order here as elsewhere does not strictly denote either corresponding sequence or relative frequency but depends somewhat on alphabetic order.

In Gaelic, there is no w or v; and radical g , k become usually c but frequently g ; and radical q becomes regularly g (see, however, section ir.).

Note that, in Latin, "The difference [in pronunciation] between C, K, and Q is represented by Quintilian as almost nil" (Fragments and Specimens of Early Latin, by John Wordsworth, page 29); also that, in Latin, "C was used indiscriminately for both the sharp and flat guttural mute [ $c$ and g], till the beginning of the sixth century u. c. [about 250 в. C.], when a modified form (G)

[^4]was introduced for the flat sound" (A Grammar of the Latin Language, by Henry John Roby, part i., page 34).

For illustrations of the changes radical palatals undergo in the Aryan languages, see entries 142, 352, 360, 519, 662, 668, 727.

In Basque, radical palatals become k, g, h. (See especially entries 57, 106 (?), 107, 468).

V.

в, $\mathrm{P} ; \mathrm{v}$, y .-In the Aryan languages, radical b becomes b , f, p , or v (in Latin). For a possible example of w (in Gothic) from radical $b$, see entry 1. I find that Latin $b$ is rarely original; that is, descended from radical b. For probable if not unmistakable examples, see entries $78,88,102,106,379,443$. In entry 586 , Latin b- probably represents radical p-.

Hebrew has not the f-sound initial but has the p-sound instead. Arabic has not the p -sound at all but has the f -sound initial as well as medial and final. Gaelic and the Teutonic languages have not natively p initial (but see entries $54,108,592$, 596), and therefore represent radical p initial (see entries 578614) by b or f, as might be conjectured. (Note that, by prefixing a vowel, Anglo-Saxon open (entry 585), open, has radical p- unchanged). Otherwise, in the Aryan languages, radical p becomes p, b, f, or v (in Latin, entries 365 and 712).

In Basque (which is said not to have the letter f; but see entries 51 and 112) radical $\mathrm{b}, \mathrm{p}$ regularly become b or p .

In the Aryan languages, radical v is often lost but may become $\mathrm{w}(\mathrm{v})$, b, f, or p. For interesting examples, see entries 20 , 226, 318, 527, 763.

In Basque, radical v is regularly lost (but see entry 525).
Radical y is always lost in Gaelic; and usually lost, but may become $w(v)$ or $j(g)$, in the Teutonic languages and Latin. (See especially entries $307,313,325,332$ ).

In Basque, radical y may, when initial, become j ; but is otherwise lost. (See especially entries 178 and 327).

In Hebrew, y often replaces radical v. Both consonants are often intrusive in roots really biconsonantal and merely effect a "strengthening [of] the vocalic element." (See Gesenius' Hebrew Grammar, sections 72-3).

VI.

Linguals ( $\mathrm{D}, \mathrm{T}, \mathrm{T}^{2}$ ). $\dagger$-Radical linguals ( $\mathrm{d}, \mathrm{t}, \mathrm{t}^{2}$ ) may become d or t in the Aryan languages and Basque. In Hebrew, $t^{3}$ is sometimes a prefix. I have not found it reflected as such in the Aryan languages (see entries 487, 708, 798) or in Basque (see entry 455).

VII.

Liquids ( $\mathrm{L}, \mathrm{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{r}$ ).-The liquids ( $\mathrm{l}, \mathrm{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{r}$ ) are sometimes interchanged in the Semitic as also in the Aryan languages. Thus, Hebrew $s^{3}$ alah ${ }^{3}$, to send, is recognized by etymologists to be cognate with Arabic sarah ${ }^{2}$ a, to send forth; Hebrew halaz², loin, with Aramaic.$^{3}{ }^{3} a r a z^{2}$, hip, loin; Greek do ${ }^{2}$ ron, gift, with Latin donum, gift; Greek leirion, lily, with Latin lilium, lily; etc. Radical liquids, therefore, may be expected to be somewhat interchanged in words common to the Semitic and the Aryan languages. Interesting to note is the change of radical $m$ to $r$ in English "warm" (entry 254) (or r to m in Hebrew . $\mathrm{h}^{3}$ amam, to be warm?); of radical $r$ to $m$ in English "womb" (entry 682); of radical $n$ to r in Latin sterilis (entry 636), barren; and in English "smear" (entry 770); of radical $n$ to $l$ in Latin clepo (entry 141), to steal.

In Basque, such interchange is very frequent. Note particularly the change of radical m to r in entries $46,96,556,719,769$; of radical n to r in entries $50,242,303,443,548,600,673,722$, 776 ; of radical r to n in entries $372,569,578$, 687. (See also section xi.).

Besides this interchange of liquids, note that radical $r$ has become s in English "west" (entry 29); in English "yesterday" (entry 29); in Greek chthes (entry 29), yesterday; in Latin pecus (entry 102), cattle; and $s^{2}$ in Sanskrit $h^{2} y^{2} s^{2}$ (entry 29), yesterday.

Radical $n$ initial is, in Hebrew, regularly (but not invariably) lost in certain phases of inflection if the medial radical is firm; but is regularly (but not invariably) retained if the medial radical is a guttural. (See Gesenius' Hebrew Grammar, section 66). The almost perfect agreement, in this matter, of the Aryan languages and Basque with Hebrew is very surprising, most of the [^5]instances of disagreement being due to the preservation (not invariable), by the former languages, of radical $n$ initial if the medial radical is g or k , that is, one closely allied to the gutturals. (See entries 397, 433, 437-92).

Radical $n$ medial is often lost in Hebrew, and the loss is sometimes reflected in the Aryan languages and (?) Basque. (See entries $34,51,61,76,77,92,119,235,240,242,574)$. Medial $n$ has at times been peculiarly lost from Anglo-Saxon words. (See entries 289, 302, 339, 357).

Radical liquids (especially l, m, n) when final are often lost in the Aryan languages and Basque. For the loss of radical r final in the Aryan languages (never in Gaelic unless in entry 106), see entries 102, 106, 117, 124, 129, 214, 223, 236, 273, 406, 477, $576,591,679,801$; in Basque, see entries $86,102,105,106,118$, 209, 232, 236, 266, 477, (569), 576, (634), 638.

In the Aryan languages, n is known to be sometimes intrusive. For examples, see entries $26,28,57,84,289,290,394,479,509$, $612,637,646,715$. I have found no examples in Gaelic or Basque. In Sanskrit r ${ }^{3} \mathrm{am}^{2} \mathrm{~b}$ (entry 712), to hang down; and Sanskrit $\mathrm{l}^{3} \mathrm{am}^{2} b$ (entry 712), to dangle, the $-\mathrm{m}^{2}$ - is supposed to be intrusive. In English "bridegroom" (entry 656), the second -r- is supposed to be intrusive.

In the Semitic languages, $m$ is often a prefix. This is never reflected as a prefix in the Aryan languages. (See entries 150, $190,192,212,248,322,327,351,390,397,401,[406], 410,419,423$, 426, 433, 442, 446, 452, 454, 457, 462, 465, 468, 469, 470, 472, 478, $479,482,483,491,515,519,546,627,638,646,656,661,747)$. I find that $m$ occurs unmistakably as a prefix in Basque. (See entries 242 (?), 327, 371, 426, 495, 638, 761).

VIII.

$\mathrm{z}, \mathrm{z}^{2}$.-Radical $\mathrm{z}, \mathrm{z}^{2}$ are represented in the Aryan languages by d, sd, s, st, t, or (z). Among things suggesting the Aryan values of radical $z, z^{2}$ are the Aramaic use (frequent) of $d$ and $t$ where Hebrew has $z$ and $z^{2}$ respectively; the proper names (in English), Tyre and Sidon (Zidon), which in Hebrew begin each with $z^{2}$; and the occasional interchange of $z$ with $z^{2}$ in Hebrew (entries 542 and 638). Most instructive is Hebrew *zah²ar (entry 190) to shine, give light, which I connect with English "star." The latter word, it is well known, is cognate with Welsh ser, stars, and with Sanskrit $s^{2} t^{3} \mathrm{rn}^{4} \mathrm{as}^{2}(?)$, stars, as well as with Sanskrit $t^{3} a^{2} r^{3} s^{2}$, stars; but etymologists have queried why the words begin so variably. Barely less instructive is Hebrew hozen (entry 24), ear, with which I connect Gothic auso, ear; Latin audio, to hear; etc. (The -r in English "ear" and the -r- in Latin auris, ear, represent radical -z-. See entry 24 and section ix.). (See also especially entries $28,68,199,200,202,203,205,213,225,327,476$, 611, 629, 636, 641, 642, 659, 660).

In view of the Aramaic use (frequent) of $h^{4}$ and $q$ where Hebrew has $z^{2}$ (see entry 68), I have conjectured that radical $-z^{2}$ (entry 47) has become -g- (-h-) in Gothic *magan, to be able (to do); etc.

In Basque, radical $z, z^{2}$ become ch, tch, cht, $s, t s, s t,(t), z, t z$, zt. (See especially entries $28,190,194,196,232,256,476,531$, $556,557,624,626,630,632,638)$.

IX.

$\mathrm{s}, \mathrm{s}^{2}, \mathrm{~s}^{3}$.-Radical $\mathrm{s}, \mathrm{s}^{2}, \mathrm{~s}^{3}$ regularly become s in the Aryan languages. Often in Anglo-Saxon and regularly in Latin, s between vowels has recently been changed to r (see entries 24, 71, 262, $263,360,487,542,791)$. This change is well known to philologists.

In view of the occasional interchange of $s^{2}$ and $z^{2}$ in Hebrew (see entry 613), I have made entry 613 in query and have placed Gaelic dearg, red, in entry 733 in query.

In entries 74 and 754 , I have conjectured that radical $-s^{3}-$ and $s^{3}-$ are the ancestors of st- and $t$ - in the Aryan words cited. Etymologists consider somehow related all the words (except Basque oroch, a male calf) which are cited in entry 754.

In some of the Semitic languages $\mathrm{t}^{2}$ often stands for radical $\mathrm{s}^{3}$ (or $s^{3}$ for radical $t^{2}$ ?). I have found no reflection of this in the Aryan languages except in Greek tu (su) (entry 77), thou. Aryan philology recognizes the interchange of $t$ and $s$ in various relations. The interchange is doubtless related to that of $t^{2}$ with radical $s^{3}$ in the Semitic languages.

In Basque, radical $s, s^{2}, s^{3}$ are represented by ch, (tch, cht), s, ts, st, z, tz, zt. (See especially entries $53,70,71,228,283$, $285,335,372,449,450,456,494,500,505,687,691,768,769,771$, 778, 785, 788, 790). I have not found examples of tch or cht for radical $\mathrm{s}, \mathrm{s}^{2}, \mathrm{~s}^{3}$, but doubt not that they are to be found.

x.

Loss of Radicals.-Roots tend to become monosyllabic in the Aryan languages and Basque, often becoming actually monosyllabic through the loss of vowels only (see section xi.), and often becoming monosyllabic fragments through the loss of consonants with or without loss of vowels. The radical consonants most frequently lost are the gutturals ( $\mathrm{h}, \mathrm{h}^{2}, \mathrm{~h}^{3}$, $\mathrm{h}^{4}$; see section imi.); v , y (see section v.); initial k (see section iv.); initial n , medial n , and final $\mathrm{l}, \mathrm{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{r}$ (see section vir.). I have noted also the loss of the following radicals: in the Aryan languages, -b (entries 275, 335 (?), 681); -d (entries 187, 390, 391, 501, 544, 604 (?), 635, 637); -t (entry 380); -k (entry 766); -p (entries 51 and 306); -q (entries 436 and 623(?)); -s ${ }^{3}$ (entries 305 and 653); - $t^{2}$ (entries 516 and 744); in Basque, -k (entry 115); -z² (entry 771); -s² (entry 569). (For the loss of initial and medial radicals (strong), see entries $114,378,391,445,571,635,692,799)$.

When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages (entries 222, 227, 264, 729, 784, etc.; exceptions in entries 254 and 499 (?)) and Basque (entries 194, 248, 271, 304, 368, 426, etc.; exceptions in entries 231 and 294 (?)). Modern scholarship regards the final consonant in such cases as suffixed to biconsonantal roots. (See Gesenius' Hebrew Grammar, section 67). The fact that the repetition of the medial radical is not regularly reflected in the Aryan languages would seem to indicate that the socalled third radical of these roots is(as modern scholarship has conjectured) only a suffix. The exceptions are too few to be troublesome and yet how are they to be explained? Was the root of English "warm" (entry 254; Hebrew .h3amam, to be warm) originally [* $\left.{ }^{3}-\mathrm{r}-\mathrm{m}\right]$ ? Or was the process of augmenting biconsonantal roots very anciently practiced?

When the medial and the final consonant of a root are similar in character, only one of them (probably the stronger) is represented in the Aryan languages (entries 387, 447, 466, 716, 747, 775, 782, etc.; exceptions in entries 393, 453, 721 (?), 735 (?)) and Basque (entries 104 and 310; an exception in entry 447). This observation is not applicable to cases where the medial and the final consonant are liquids.

In the Semitic and the Aryan languages, actual doubling (gemination) of consonants occurs often, sometimes through the influence of vowels or semivowels and at other times from various designs or even seemingly mere caprice. Fictitious gemination is frequent in the Aryan languages when written or printed and is usually a mere clerical device. In all such cases I have, in the Alphabetic Exposition and the Synopses, treated the doubled consonants as if single, even when the gemination takes the form of cg , for example, instead of gg (as often in Anglo-Saxon) or of ck instead of cc (?) (as often in English). Where gemination is due to assimilation involving a radical and a non-radical consonant, the fact has been indicated by difference in the typography of the letters. Gemination resulting from prefixing the Hebrew article (entries 111 and 302) I have represented as arising from assimilation. This is in accordance with the long-current supposition that the Hebrew article originally ended in l. Modern scholarship has queried whether that supposition is well founded. (See Gesenius' Hebrew Grammar, section 35).

The distinctions in typography which I have intentionally made and which need explanation are here briefly detailed. Within a given entry, radical consonants and their successors in derivatives of the root have been printed in small capitals; except that, in English derivatives (not defined but) occurring in the definitions given and the notes, the consonants representing the root have been printed in italics. Vowels are so printed (in small capitals or italics) only when lying within limits reflecting the root, $u$ and $y$ being somewhat irregularly excepted in a few instances. In cases of reduplication (see section xiv.), vowels lying between the reduplicated parts of the root have been printed without distinction. In a few instances where suffixes (see section xir.) have become as it were radical, I have printed them in small capitals or italics. Other irregularities (readily intelligible) in the use of small capitals occur in entries $34,324,339,653$. Unfortunately for the typographical system here detailed, the small capitals $\mathrm{o}, \mathrm{s}, \mathrm{v}, \mathrm{w}, \mathrm{x}$, and z are scarcely to be distinguished from the corresponding lower-case letters $o, s, v, w, x$, and $z$. Often the typography of neighboring vowels will advise the reader, in such cases, whether the letters are to be considered small-capital or lower-case.

XI.

Consonantal Contact.--The ancient Hebrews uttered their words with much precision, seldom permitting contact of one consonant with another to occur. The Aryan and the Basque peoples, on the contrary, have freely dropped vowels and, by thus bringing together consonants possibly inharmonious and difficult of utterance, have at times rendered it desirable or even necessary to substitute other consonants for those offending or in fact to omit the latter without substitution. Whether combinations of consonants lack harmony, whether they are difficult of utterance, and, if so, what combinations can best replace them, must initially depend largely on the vocal organs and the physical as well as the critical ear of the individual speaker. Thus, it would seem, may in great measure be explained the wide variation in the forms one meets with of words that were once identical.

Most readers of this volume will have been previously made familiar, by education and by observation, with many if not all of the various changes that take place, in the several languages herein considered, from contact of consonant with consonant. It may, however, be well to observe here that, from such contact, gutturals ( $\mathrm{h}, \mathrm{h}^{2}, \mathrm{~h}^{3}, \mathrm{~h}^{4}$ ) often become palatals ( $\mathrm{g}, \mathrm{k}, \mathrm{q}$ ); as, Hebrew zanah ${ }^{3}$ (entry 203), to stink; Anglo-Saxon stincan, to stink; and to observe further that palatals, particularly in Gothic and AngloSaxon, may thus become guttural, as is exemplified in AngloSaxon hweogul (entry 519), wheel, which becomes hweohl after dropping the vowel $u$. Further, I would call attention to the frequency (not regularity) with which r when brought into contact with $d$ or $t$ is in Basque replaced by some other liquid (particularly by n); as, Basque afari (entry 112), supper; afaldu, to eat supper; Hebrew $\mathrm{k}^{2}(\mathrm{e}) \mathrm{res}^{2}$ (entry 372), belly; Basque gantz, belly. (See also entries 36, 569, 578, 687).
XII.

Suffixes; Final Radicals.-The suffixes which are of frequent occurrence and especially worthy to be kept in mind in reading the present volume are: in Hebrew, $\mathrm{h}^{2}$, $\mathrm{y}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{t}^{2}$; in Gaelic, $\mathrm{c}, \mathrm{d}$, $\mathrm{g}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{t}$; in Gothic, $\mathrm{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{s}, \mathrm{t}$; in Anglo-Saxon, $\mathrm{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{h}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{t}$; in Latin, c, d, l, m, n, r, s, t; and in Basque, n, tz, -tu (-du). Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated.

The question must often arise whether, in a given word, a given consonant is a suffix or is of radical origin. In such a case it is important to observe whether the given consonant is preceded by consonants that are conjointly capable of representing the whole root; whether represented in closely allied words; and whether frequent as a suffix; also, whether the radical considered as the possible ancestor of the given consonant is usually persistent under like conditions. (See especially entries 73, 91, 92, 294, 431, 433).

As $n$ and the dentals ( $\mathrm{d}, \mathrm{t}$ ) are suffixes in many Aryan words which are cognate with Hebrew words having $n$ or $t^{2}$ correspondingly as a suffix, I think some of the words must have taken the suffixes before the Aryan peoples began their first migrations. For probable illustrations of this, see entries 22, 29, 67, 86, (93), 114, 146, 460, 521, 525, 574, 726.

In the Aryan languages and Basque a vowel is sometimes prefixed to the root and becomes as it were a part of it. (See especially the Greek words cited in entries 190, 302, 414; and the Basque words cited in entries 112, 136, 226, 228, 298, 456, 568). Something besides a vowel seems to have been prefixed to some of the Aryan words cited in entries 715, 779, 780. (See also entry 419).

XIII.

Consonantal Transposition.-Instances of transposition of consonants are rarely met with in either the Semitic or the Aryan languages. Evident examples are: Hebrew h ${ }^{4}$ al(e)vah ${ }^{2}$, iniquity, beside Hebrew $h^{4} a v(e) l a h^{2}$, iniquity; Hebrew .mal(e) $t^{3} a-$ $\mathrm{h}^{4}$ out ${ }^{2}$, teeth, beside Hebrew m(e)t ${ }^{2}$ all(e) $\mathrm{h}^{4}$ out ${ }^{2}$, teeth; AngloSaxon acsian (entry 737), to ask, beside Anglo-Saxon ascian, to ask; Anglo-Saxon aesc (entry 374), axe, beside Anglo-Saxon aex, axe; Anglo-Saxon waeps (entry 287), wasp, beside Anglo-Saxon waesp, wasp; Latin ascia (for *acsia) (entry 374), axe; Greek eraze (entry 68), to earth, beside Greek erasde, to earth; and English "mix" (for *misc) (entry 418).

I have conjectured consonantal transposition in English "back" (etc.) (entry 122); in Gothic hlahjan (etc.) (entry 393), to laugh; in Latin passer (entry 641), sparrow; and in English "grave" (etc.) (entry 650). (See also entries 289, 299, 325, 688).
"Examples of transposition of letters [(consonants)] (metathesis, hyperthesis) are very common in Basque" (van Eys, Outlines of Basque Grammar, page 4). I have conjectured transposition of consonants in a great many Basque words cited in the present volume. (See especially entries 3, 36, 59, 206, 214, $233,256,329,362,557,618,722,785,790$ ).

XIV.

Reduplication.-In the Semitic languages, reduplication may involve only the final radical (entries 45, 514, 749); only the medial and the final radical (entries 266, 779), in which case the initial radical if weak may be lost (entry 316); or only the first two radicals if the medial and the final radical are the same in character (entries 137, 144, 634, 651). In the last case the root is supposed to be really biconsonantal (see section x.) though apparently triconsonantal. The supposedly fictitious third radical is regularly lost in the process of reduplicating the first two radicals. Further, roots with the medial radical inserted for the purpose of "strengthening the yocalic element" (see section v.) may reduplicate the first and the last radical with loss of the medial radical (entry 457).

In the older stratum of the Aryan languages are to be seen occasional examples of what I conceive to be reduplication similar to the reduplication occurring in Semitic. (See entries 1, 43, 255, 323, $495(?), 517,524,674$ (?), 802). There are instances in which, it would seem, two radicals were at first involved, and later the second duplicate radical dropped out or was converted into a cognate consonant. (See entries 9 (?), 137, 661, 802).

Recently, it would seem, some of the Aryan languages adopted a new kind of reduplication, which may be called regressive reduplication, anticipatory repetition. Usually only the initial consonant is involved, being imitated (or, repeated as it were) before being itself uttered. (See entries 46, 112, 293, 421, 491).

In Basque, reduplication of the Semitic sort is to be seen in entries $51,144,146,253,634$. There seem to be also in Basque instances of reduplication of meaning from compounding two words, synonymous but unrelated in form. (See entries 295, 349, 666, 666, 684, 786). I conjecture English "selfsame" to be an example of this. Note also English (colloquial) "bare-naked" and "free-gratis."

On the peculiar typography sometimes used in the present volume in the case of words showing reduplication, see section x .

XV.

Syntactic Position.-The arrangement of words in sentences in any given language long undisturbed follows, in general, certain grooves as it were and is very difficult to change, except in the mouths of foreigners. Metrical composition (oral and written) tends (only gradually) to render variable the syntactic position of some few words. Foreign influences, however, may abruptly bring about such variability in the case of many words, or even all the parts of a sentence; but cannot, of course, dissolve words that have become firmly compounded.

Long ago, it is supposed, two widely different (though perhaps fundamentally related) families of languages met in Europe and have since, to some extent, intermingled,-the Eastern family, becoming the Ural-Altaic or Scythian family (to which are currently assigned Lappish, Finnish, Hungarian, Turkish, etc.); and the Western family, becoming the Indo-European or Aryan family (which I find to be fundamentally Semitic and with which I would provisionally ally Basque).

The languages spoken in Europe today, then, are the descendants of two seemingly distinct tongues and, it may be properly inferred, bear each some characteristic marks of each parent. Unfortunately, important characteristics of early Scythian are unknown except in so far as they have been correctly conjectured from a study of the descendant tongues, which must be supposed to have been more or less seriously corrupted from contact with the Western family. Of the descendants of this latter family, Gaelic seems to me to be most primitively Semitic; that is, to have suffered least from contact with the Eastern family; and Basque, it likewise seems, has suffered much if not most from such contact; in fact, I might say, Basque seems to me to have adjusted to its largely Semitic vocabulary and its Semitic (?) groundwork a syntax markedly Scythian.

In Gaelic, the finite verb is placed before the subject much more rigidly than in any other language known to me. Gaelic, in this respect, is ultra-Semitic.

In Gaelic, a noun in the genitive invariably follows the noun on which it depends. This is Semitic.

In Gaelic, a noun limited by a noun in the genitive never admits the definite article. This is Semitic.

In Gaelic, personal pronouns are regularly compounded with prepositions and when so compounded are invariably postpositive. In these respects, Gaelic is Semitic.

In Gaelic, a prepositional phrase is regularly used instead of the predicate possessive (predicate genitive) characteristic of the other Aryan languages (see section i.). This is Semitic. These two constructions fundamentally differ, in most if not all instances, only as prepositions differ from postpositions.

In Gaelic, the numbers from 11 to 19 are expressed by placing the word for the unit or units first; the name of the things designated, second; and then the word for 10 ; thus, "one man ten" (for "eleven men"); "two men ten" (for "twelve men"); "three men ten" (for "thirteen men"); etc. (See Genesis $32: 22 ; 14: 4$; 17:25; 31:41; 7:20; 46:18; 37:2; Judges 3:14; 2 Samuel 2:30). In Hebrew, "The numerals from 11 to 19 are formed by placing the units, without the copula, before the number ten..., but without the two words being joined into one. However, owing to their rapid pronunciation in one breath, the units almost invariably appear in the form of the construct st. [(state)] (without pretonic vowels);..." (Gesenius' Hebrew Gramıar, section 97, d). I would explain the presence of the form of the construct state here designated by supposing a noun to have been dropped in Hebrew from between the word for the unit or units and the word for 10. It should, however, be remarked that in Hebrew the name of the objects numbered regularly follows the word for 10 . I conjecture that the original form of the Semitic and of the Gaelic mode of numeration here considered was like this: "one man ten men" (for "eleven men"); "two men ten men" (for "twelve men"); etc.; and that Semitic has omitted the first noun; Gaelic, the second.

In Basque, the subject regularly precedes the verb. This is Scythian.

In Basque, a noun (or pronoun) in the genitive invariably precedes the noun on which it depends. This is Scythian. In Genesis 24:48, for example, the Basque order is: " . . . my master's brother's daughter..."; just as in (the "King James") English. Again, in Genesis 24:51: ". . .thy master's son's wife,..."; in Basque just as in (the "King James") English. This order is Scythian; also Dano-Norwegian; but not regularly Icelandic, not regularly Anglo-Saxon, never (?) Wycliffite English. (See also Genesis 14:12; Mark 1:30; Acts 23:16). Again, in Genesis 24:67, the Basque order and idiom (invariable each) are the same as the English (not Anglo-Saxon): ".. .his mother Sarah's tent,..." (See also Genesis 26:24; 32:18; Matthew 14:3, 8; Mark 6:17, 24; Luke 3:19). Further, in Mark 1:1, the English is: "The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God." The same order is seen in the Greek and the Latin text; also in the Icelandic, the Arabic, and the Gaelic. In the Basque text, however, as also in the Turkish, the Hungarian, the Finnish, and the DanoNorwegian, the order is practically reversed and the passage ends, as it were thus: "...gospel's beginning." .This is very significant. (See also Matthew 1:1, where only the Finnish order is irregular).

In Basque, pronouns regularly take governing suffixes (or, are regularly compounded with postpositions). This is Scythian. A trace of this is seen in Latin mecum (me-with), tecum (theewith), etc. I may here observe that the component parts of Latin mecum (me-with) are, in my opinion, cognate with those of Basque enequin (enekin) (me-with). Are English "herewith," "hitherto," etc., kindred (as to the order of the component parts) with the Basque and the Latin compounds here cited?

In Basque, the participle of so-called compound-tense forms invariably precedes the auxiliary. This is Scythian. The same order of participle and auxiliary prevails in the so-called com-pound-tense forms in Latin (and some other Aryan languages). The same order is seen in the form of the past tense and the perfect participle of Teutonic weak (regular) verbs. Thus, English "walked," "laid," etc., are known to be for "*walk-did," "*laydid," etc. I conjecture that the Teutonic system of weak verbs is of Scythian origin. The internal vowel-change (regular) of Teutonic strong verbs (which are known to be older in form than weak verbs) is comparable (it has been observed by philologists) to that of Semitic verbs.

In Basque, the numbers from 11 to 19 are expressed by words (firmly compounded) corresponding to these: "ten-one" (for "eleven"), "ten-two" (for "twelve"), "ten-three" (for "thirteen"), etc. This is Scythian (and also Chinese) and is in strong contrast with the Semitic and Aryan (regular) order. (See section xvir.).

xvi.

Comparison of Adjectives.-The comparison of adjectives in the Aryan languages is variously complicated and few of the details have been satisfactorily analyzed. I conjecture (and find others have likewise conjectured) that the various Aryan endings of the comparative degree were originally demonstratives. If rightly, "he is wiser" literally means "he is wise, he," which is intelligible but might be more so. I conjecture the original form to have been "is wise he," used for emphasis instead of "is he wise," which I take to have once been our regular form of declaration and which is the regular form of declaration used in Gaelic today; that is, the beginning of the comparative degree was (as I see it) only an emphasizing variation of the position of the adjective in unemphatic declaration (see section xv.). In time, the pronoun of the emphatic order became, it is easy to see, suffixed to the adjective as ordinarily to the verb (see section xviri.). The verb, too, has in Gaelic become a regular part of the comparative form of the adjective though not joined to it and still subject to inflection as a verb. At first the pronoun was joined, it is properly inferable, only to adjectives frequently used and was not, as now, viewed as a transferable suffix. Adjectives thus altered, being at first only emphatic forms, must have tended to render the unemphatic forms obsolete (see also sections xvir. and xviri.). When the emphatic form took on a definitely comparative sense, a new form for the positive meaning had to be found; that is, a word of positive form and similar meaning was substituted for the lost positive. This I conceive to be the reason why the most frequently used adjectives, in most if not all Aryan languages, are of irregular comparison,-a query of long standing in philology.

The origin and literal meaning of the superlative ending -est have, I believe, never been suspected by etymologists. I conjecture that the superlative form arose from emphasizing the comparative form, just as the latter arose from emphasizing the positive form. Now what order is more emphatic for the adjective than "is wise he" (the original comparative form)? Certainly "wise is he"; that is, the superlative ending -est is the verb with the pronoun suffixed, the -t in the ending -est being the same as the th- in English "the" and "that" (see section xviri.). Gaelic cannot place the adjective before the verb and the consequence (?) is that the comparative and the superlative form are identical and can be distinguished only by the context.

The beginning, then, as I see it, of the comparison of adjectives in the Aryan languages is as follows:

Positive: "is he wise" (declarative);
Comparative:"is wise he";
Superlative: "wise is he."
A superlative form with $m$ as a suffix is seen in a few Gothic and Anglo-Saxon words and is regular in Latin. The superlative in Welsh regularly ends in f , standing for earlier m. I take these forms in m to be kindred with the Basque superlative, which regularly ends in -ena, and which van Eys regards as "the genitive plural, followed by the article a." (See also entry 416).

In Hebrew, adjectives have only the positive form (but see Gesenius' Hebrew Grammar, section 133, a). Hebrew adjectives translated as comparatives or superlatives in the Aryan languages are usually followed by a prepositional phrase beginning with $\min (\mathrm{mi})$ (entry 416), from. This shows that the ablative and the genitive used after adjectives in the comparative or the superlative degree in the Aryan languages are really the ablative and the genitive of separation.

English "than" and Latin quam, than, following comparatives have been thought to be accusative forms of demonstratives, but their construction and meaning do not seem to have been ascertained. I think them "adverbial accusatives" originally meaning "as," like the German als, than.

The following references will be found serviceable for the study of modes of comparing adjectives (and adverbs) in various languages: Genesis $1: 16 ; 3: 1 ; 4: 13 ; 19: 9 ; 24: 2 ; 25: 23 ; 26: 16 ; 29: 19$, 30; 34:19.

XVII.

Numeral Words.-I have not been able to discover any traces of kinship between the Semitic words for $1,2,3,4,5,8,9,10 \dagger$ and the corresponding Aryan words. This, of course, does not necessarily indicate that systematic numeration had not become established before the Aryan peoples began their first migrations; indeed, it would seem (see section xv.) that some of the features of even advanced numeration had already become fixed.
1.-In the principal Aryan languages the words for $2,3,4,5,6$, $7,8,9,10$ are uniform. There seems to be irregularity in designating 1. Some etymologists consider English "one" and Sanskrit eka, one, cognate, the -n- and the -k-being (they think) suffixes. An inspection of the words for the other numbers up to (and including) 10 does not lead to the inference that the -n- and the $-\mathrm{k}-$ above designated are suffixes. It should, however, be borne in mind that the ideas of unity, oneness, aloneness call very often for emphatic expression. It is therefore possible that English "one" and Sanskrit eka, one, are (one or) both emphatic forms that have replaced an earlier form. Note that English "alone" (literally "all-one") has succeeded Anglo-Saxon ana, alone, (see Luke 5:21;4:4; Matthew 4:4; etc.).

It is possible (indeed, I may say, probable) that English "one" and Sanskrit eka, one, are from the root k-v-n (entry 348) (Hebrew $* k^{2}$ wn, to set up, establish; to be firm, fixed, stable, enduring; Hebrew $\mathrm{k}^{2} \mathrm{en}$, (properly, firm, upright), right, veritable, true). In this case, Sanskrit eka, one, has lost radical n final (see section vii.) ; and most of the other Aryan languages have lost radical k

[^6]initial (see entries 350, 352, 361, 367, 375); but Greek heis (genitive, henos), one, has both radical $k$ initial and radical $n$ final represented (see also entry 350). Note also that English "one" begins actually (though not graphically) with w. This may indicate the loss of a guttural or a palatal. This derivation for Sanskrit eka, one, if correct, does not necessarily indicate that the word is unrelated to Hebrew hak(e) (entry 35), but, only, with which I have treated it as cognate; for there is a probability (etymologists think) that Hebrew hak(e) is referable to the root k-v-n.

Again, a remote possibility that should not be overlooked is that Sanskrit eka, one, may be cognate with Hebrew hehad (Aramaic $h^{3}$ ad) (entry 26), one, radical -d having been lost from the Sanskrit word (see section x.). This would make Sanskrit eka, one, cognate with Sanskrit $c^{3} a^{3} a$, hundred, like Gaelic ceud, first; hundred, (entry 26).

In entry 35, I have treated the -eka of Basque hameka, eleven, as cognate with Sanskrit eka, one. Yet it is scarcely probable that this is correct if Sanskrit eka, one, is an Aryan word; since Basque hameka, eleven, is a compound made in accordance with the Scythian mode of expressing the numbers from 11 to 19 (see section xv., at end). It is possible, I conceive, that the earlier form of Basque bat, one, was [bak], the [-k] of which has survived in Basque hameka, eleven. (See Outlines of Basque Grammar, by W. J. van Eys, page 2).
2.-I think Anglo-Saxon twegen, two, unmistakably cognate with Hebrew .tªham (entry 793), to be double. The -o in Latin duo, two; and the $-0^{2}$ in Greek duo ${ }^{2}$, two, seem to indicate the loss of a following nasal (see also entry 139). Anglo-Saxon begen, both, seems to me to be phonetically related to Anglo-Saxon twegen, two, just as Latin bellum, war, is related to Latin duellum, war; Latin bonus, good, to Latin duonus, good; etc. I would connect Anglo-Saxon begen, both; and Latin bis, twice, with Basque biga (bi), two. I think Latin bonus (duonus), good, a compound, the second part of which is seen in Basque on, good; so that Latin bonus (duonus) literally means "twice good."
3.-I conjecture that English "three" (entry 793) is a compound, made by joining (without copula $\dagger$ ) "two" with -r-(-r or $\mathrm{r}-$ ), for which I assume the meaning "one." Note that Basque hirur means "three" and Basque laur (for [*lahirur]?) means "four."
4.-I conjecture that Latin quatuor (entries 35 and 793), four, means literally "one [and] two [and] one."
5.-The qu- in Latin quinque (entries 35 and 445), five, is evidently the same as the qu- in Latin quatuor, four, and means, (I assume) "one." In view of the importance of the hand in primitive counting, I query whether the -nque in Latin quinque, five, does not mean "hand" (or, "parcel of four"?). I note the harmony of form between Greek pente, five; and Greek panta (neuter, plural), all; and I query whether Latin cunctus, all, may not be related to Latin quinque, five. I also query whether Latin omnis, all, may not be related to Latin manus (entry 324), hand. There is a possibility that Latin omnis, all, is related to English "many" (entry 417).

English "four" and "five" are properly regarded as unmistakably cognate with Latin quatuor, four; and Latin quinque, five, respectively; and yet I have not so printed them in entry 35. Does English f ever represent a radical guttural or palatal?

6, 7.-I query whether the sec- in Latin sex, six; and the sepin Latin septem, seven, are the same as the sec- in Latin secundus, the second, and denote the second series of five, the -s in Latin sex, six, meaning "one" and the -tem in Latin septem, seven, meaning "two."
8.-I query whether a prefix (represented in Latin sex, six; and in Latin septem, seven) has been dropped from Latin octo, eight; and if so, whether the word originally meant literally "(in the second series) one [and] two."
9.-Some etymologists regard Latin novem, nine, as meaning literally "a new one" in a tetradic system of numeration.
10.-I think English "ten" means literally "two (hands)" and (with Anglo-Saxon twegen, two) is cognate with Hebrew .t ${ }^{3}$ aham

[^7](entry 793), to be double. Note also the form of Latin decem, ten.

11-19.-In the Semitic and in the Aryan languages (except Gaelic; see section xv.), the numbers from 11 to 19 are, in general, if expressed in words, regularly put thus: "one-ten" (for 11), "two-ten" (for 12), "three-ten" (for 13), etc. In strong contrast with this mode of numeration, the Basque words (also the Scythian and the Chinese) for the numbers from 11 to 19 literally mean "ten-one" (for 11), "ten-two" (for 12), "ten-three" (for 13), etc. (See also section xv.).

English "eleven" and "twelve" seem irregular and have remained unexplained. I conjecture that the -lev- in English "eleven" and the -lv- in English "twelve" each mean "ten," and are cognate with Hebrew helep (entry 42), which seemingly means "thousand" but which (I assume) may easily mean merely "ten (hundred)" or "tenth (count)."
100.-Etymologists suppose English "hundred" to mean literally "tenth count." I take it to mean "first count." I was led to this belief by the relation I conceived to exist between English "eleven" (and "twelve") and Hebrew helep, thousand; also by the fact that Gaelic ceud (entry 26) means both "first" and "hundred." I note further that Gothic has two ways of verbally indicating $100:(1)$ by taihun-taihund, which is literally "ten tens" and in line with $90,80,70$, etc.; and (2) by hund, which seemingly means "hundred" but which I should say really means "first (count)" and is in line with Hebrew helep, thousand, ten (hundred), tenth (count). (See entries 26 and 42).

XVIII.

Pronouns.-As a class, pronouns are, I think, the oldest words in language $\dagger$; and hence cannot properly be said to "stand for nouns" or to be "used in place of nouns." At first, pronouns were, doubtless, unspecialized demonstratives, as is generally supposed; that is, were applicable alike to the first, to the second, or to the third person, and were without distinctions for gender.

On inspection of the pronouns of the Semitic and of the Aryan languages, the pronominal forms of the first and those of the second person singular in the latter group of languages are found to differ but little from the corresponding forms of the first group. (See entries 49 and 77).

Some of the Aryan languages, however, exhibit a noticeable irregularity, among themselves, in the nominative form of the first person singular. This irregularity arose, I take it, through replacement of the primitive form by an emphatic form. Verbal endings in many of the Aryan languages point to a time when the pronominal (or other) subject regularly followed its verb just as in Gaelic today (see sections xv. and xvi.). In Gaelic, the order is thus: "is me wise." To emphasize the pronoun, Gaelic suffixes to it (or merely adds after it) a demonstrative (sa, in entry 189) and the pronoun subject has not uniformly become appended to the verb. In Hebrew, pronouns are often repeated for emphasis and often an emphasizing word meaning "even" is placed before the repeated form (or before a pronoun when not repeated); thus, "(I,) even I" (Ezekiel 5:8; 16:43); "me, even me" (Genesis $27: 34,38$ ); "she, even she" (Genesis $20: 5$ ); etc. In Hebrew, the word for "even" in such cases is regularly $g^{2}$ am (entry 139), which I take to be cognate with Greek kai meaning "and, even, also" and used like Hebrew $\mathrm{g}^{2} \mathrm{am}$, even, to emphasize a pronoun. I will insert this Hebrew word as I conceive it to have been approximately used in an early Aryan declaration emphasizing the pronoun: "is me g2am me wise." Joining the first "me" to the verb and the second one to $g^{2}$ am will give "isme" and " $\mathrm{g}^{2}$ amme," which I take to be ancestors of Sanskrit $a^{2} \mathrm{~m}^{2} \mathrm{i}$, (I) am, and Sanskrit $\mathrm{ah}^{2} \mathrm{am}^{2}$, I; of Latin sum, (I) am, and Latin ego, I; of Gothic im, (I) am, and Gothic ik, I; etc. (Philologists have, of course, long understood the origin of these verb forms but not fully, I believe, that of the pronominal forms here considered). Under Scythian $\dagger$ and other influences designated in section xv., the emphatic form of the pronoun was transferred (I assume) to a position in front of the verb and gradually became the actual subject nominative.

In like manner I would account for the well-known but hitherto unexplained irregularity in the ancestral (Anglo-Saxon) and the cognate (Gothic, Greek, Sanskrit, etc.) forms of English "the" and "that." The Gothic forms, which are typical, run thus: (masculine,) sa, (feminine,) so, (neuter,) thata, (genitive, this, thizos, this), meaning "this, that; the; he, she, it." It will be observed that the forms in s- occur only in the nominative and that the genitive forms are coradicate with the nominative form neuter. My interpretation of these phenomena is that the forms in s- are there by substitution and that the original masculine and feminine forms (nominative) in *t- are represented in Gothic ist, (he) is§; Greek esti, (he) is; etc. An early form of declaration, then, in these languages was approximately this: "is *ta (he) sa (this one) wise." Joining [^9](see also above) *ta (with loss of -a) to the verb and transferring sa to a position in front of the verb will give: "sa (this one) ist wise." Thus, it seems to me, original *ta became practically lost and sa, originally added only for emphasis, became the actual pronoun. $\dagger$ I may add (though it is hardly necessary) that the nominative form neuter remained undisturbed because less frequently needing emphatic reinforcement and because less frequently used as the subject nominative. Further, the nominative forms plural, in Greek, show a corresponding irregularity, which, in connection with the less usual verb endings -atai, -ato, meaning "(they)," leads me to suspect that these endings are original forms and that the -n- of the more usual endings -ntai, -nto; etc., is intrusive (see section vir.).

I query whether the plural forms of pronouns have not arisen by joining, without a copula§, two demonstratives; thus, for examples, Latin nos, we, would then literally mean "me [and] this"; Latin vos, you, "thou (?) [and] this"; etc. (Note that Latin nos, we, has n- instead of expected [*m-], like Basque ni, I. Does the v-in Latin vos, you, point to Basque hi, thou?).
$\dagger$ It is possible that *ta and sa are each ultimately cognate with He brew zeh ${ }^{2}$, this, that, in entry 189; and had each become somewhat specialized before the substitution of sa for *ta took place. (See also entry 734).
$\xi_{8}$ Note also the modes of forming the words for the numbers from 11 to 19 (see sections xv. and xvir.). In section xvir., I offer the conjecture that conjunctions are as a class a comparatively recent addition to the "parts of speech."

TRANSLITERATION

In devising a system of transliteration for the foreign alphabets represented in the present volume, I have aimed at propriety and simplicity. No character is herein employed that may not be seen on almost any page of ordinarily printed English, and no foreign character is represented by a letter not so previously used by others. A mere glance at Table I. will be found sufficient for the present needs of the reader if acquainted with the alphabets that are there transliterated.

The Sanskrit alphabet as transliterated in Table I. will appear formidable only to those unacquainted with the current systems of transliterating that alphabet, which use the dot above or below, the bar above or below, the cedilla, the tilde, accents, italics, etc., and which are, of course, not harmonious.

In transliterating words, my aim has been to enable the reader to turn without query to any given word (if in its proper place) in the lexicon. To this end every consonant in Semitic words herein transliterated, whether it be "movable" or "quiescent," will be found distinctively represented. The sixth Hebrew consonant will be found represented by $v, u$, or $w$, as explained in a note to Table I.

Under - a. and under -b. in the Alphabetic Exposition, in ascribing the citation of words to any authority, I transliterate, of course, the words if in foreign characters in the authority named. I should have represented them in each such case by three dots (...) and enclosed within brackets [ ] my transliteration.

Notes

Hebrew.-I write v for the sixth Hebrew consonant when not quiescent, and $u$ for it when coalescent with $h^{3}$ oulem ( 0 ). I write $w$ (to be sounded as the -oo- in English "moon") for $\mathrm{s}^{3}$ wreq. (See also entry 18). Hebrew q may be approximately sounded like "a strong $k$ formed at the back of the palate."

Arabic.-The 26th Arabic consonant "when used as a grammatical termination" I represent by h6, which, "when followed by a vowel, is to be pronounced like t."

Latin.-The modern method of printing Latin avoids J and U and has, for example, Qv for QU (though qu for qv). For obvious reasons of weight I have, in this table, printed $j$ for consonant $i$ and $q v$ for $q u ;$ but in words I have printed $Q U$ for $Q v$ and never $v$ for the vowel $U$.

I place Latin here with Gaelic, partly as a matter of convenience; as Gothic and Anglo-Saxon, of course, could not properly be separated. Contrary to current opinion, Latin is in much closer sympathy with the latter languages than with Gaelic; indeed, syntactically (though not phonetically, it would seem) Latin is much closer to Basque than to Gaelic. (See section xv.).

Basque.-In the Alphabetic Exposition which follows, radical z, z2, s, $\mathrm{s}^{2}$, $s^{3}$ would doubtless each be found to be represented in Basque by ch, tch, (cht), s, ts, (st), z, tz, and (zt) if I had inserted all the variants of the Basque words cited.

INSTRUCTIVE ROOTS

In the Alphabetic Exposition which follows, a root, the derivatives with the definitions given, and the notes appended constitute what I have designated an entry. It will be observed that seemingly unrelated roots may be identical in form. On the other hand, sometimes in the present volume, a single root, if the groups of Semitic derivatives are widely divergent in meaning, has been treated as dual or multiple and been made the basis of two or more entries. $\dagger$ A few of the entries which I judge to be most instructive are here grouped (by number), somewhat roughly according to the degree of importance which I attach to them.

ALPHABETIC EXPOSITION

Hebrew (H.), Aramaic (A.), Arabic (Ar.), Gaelic (G.), Gothic (Go.)
i. Roots tend to become monosyllabic in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.).
ii. Radical gutturals ( $h, h^{2}, h^{3}, h^{4}$ ) are regularly lost in G., and are often lost (especially $h$, $\mathbf{h}^{2}$ ) in the other Aryan languages and B. Radical h, $\mathbf{h}^{2}$ final are regularly quiescent in H. and unrepresented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section iri.).
iii. Radical gutturals and palatals ( $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{h}^{3}, \mathbf{h}^{4} ; \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{k}, \mathbf{q}$ ) may become, in Go., A.-S., and L., h, $k(c, q), g$; or, $h w(v), k(c, q) w(v)$, (? $g w(v)$; or, $w(v, b, f, p$, in L.). (See sections III. and IV.).
iv. Radical $\mathbf{v}$, $\mathbf{y}$, radical $\mathbf{n}$ initial, and radical 1, m, n, r final are often lost in the Aryan languages and B. (See sections V. and vii.).
$\mathbf{v}_{0}$ Radical liquids ( $\mathbf{1 , m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathbf{r}$ ) are regularly represented by $\mathbf{1 , m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathbf{r}$ (not always respectively) in the Aryan languages and B. (See section vii.).
vi. Radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}$ become $\mathbf{c}$, $\mathbf{s d}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s t}, \mathbf{t}$, or ( $\mathbf{z}$ ) in the Aryan languages. (See section viir.).
vii. In B., ch, tch, (cht), s, ts, (st), $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{t z}$, and ( $\mathbf{z t}$ ) are more or less freely interchanged and may each represent radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s}^{2}, \mathbf{s}^{3}$.

ALPHABETIC EXPOSITION

(Root, $\mathrm{H}-\mathrm{B}-\mathrm{H}^{2}$ ).

1a. H. нав, head, chief ruler, father, ancestor.

1b. B. јаве, master, lord.
Go. ава, man, husband.
Go. Fadar, father.
A.-S. Faeder, father.
L. Pater, father.
S. pit $^{3}$ r, father.

Gr. pate ${ }^{2}$ r, father.
Gr. pappas (papas), papa; pappos, grandfather.

Go. awo, grandmother.
Icelandic afi, grandfather.
L. avus, grandfather.

1n. English papa comes from a reduplication of the root with loss of $\mathrm{H}-$ and $-\mathrm{H}^{2}$; and so, too, Gr. papas, etc. (See section xiv.).

Go.-Etymologists have considered Go. awo, L. avus, and Icelandic ari cognate with Go. fadar, etc. If rightly, the -w- in Go. awo is an example (solitary) of Go. w arising from radical b.

The origin of the -dar in Go. fadar, the -der in A.-S. Faeder, etc., I have not been able to discover. (See also entries 12, 43, 194, 219, 791).

2.

(Root, н-в-D).
2a. H. habad, to perish, be 2b. G. bath, to perish, die; destroyed; to destroy, kill. to drown; death,murder,slaughter.

viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.).
ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in H., $h^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in G., $\mathbf{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in Go., d,
 Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section xir.).
$x$. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value.
xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x.).
xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Bib-" lical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal" or "p2(e)h"al." Under - a . and under - b ., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

3.

(Root, H-B-s).
3a. H. Hebws, stall, stable,
3b. B. sabai, a barn for hay. barn (where cattle are fed, and fodder stored).

3n. I take B. sabai to be by transposition for [ ${ }^{{ }^{\text {basaid }} \text { ]. (See }}$ section xiri.).
4.
(Root, H-B-R).

4a. H. HA $\mathrm{B}^{2} \mathrm{~B}^{2} \mathrm{Y}$, strong, mighty; noble, valiant.

4b. Go. abrs, great, mighty; abraba, very, much, greatly.

5.

(Root, н-в-L).
5a. H. habal, to grieve, la- 5b. L. fleo, to weep, cry. ment. Go. Flekan (FLokan [?]), to bewail, lament.
5n. Go.-I query whether Go. flekan is from the root H-b-L and has taken -k- as a suffix. Etymologists do not regard Go. flekan as cognate with L. fleo.
6.
(Root, H-в-R).
6a. H. *habar, to mount upwards (in flight); to soar (as the hawk); Heber, wing-feather, pinion (as the instrument of flying, soaring).

Radical $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}$ final are regularly quiescent in H. and unrepresented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section ini.).
iii. Radical gutturals and palatals ( $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{h}^{3}, \mathbf{h}^{4} ; \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{k}, \mathbf{q}$ ) may becone, in Go., A.-S., and $\mathbf{L}, \mathbf{h}, \mathbf{k}(\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{q}), \mathrm{g}$; or, $\mathrm{hw}(\mathbf{v}), \mathbf{k}(\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{q}) \mathbf{w}(\mathbf{v})$, (?) $\mathbf{g w}(\mathbf{v}) ;$ or, $\mathbf{w}(\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{b}, \mathrm{f}, \mathrm{p}$, in L.). (See sections III. and Iv.).
iv. Radical $\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{y}$, radical n initial, and radical $\mathbf{1 , m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{r}$ final are often lost in the Aryan languages and B. (See sections v. and vii.).
$\mathbf{v}$. Radical liquids ( $\mathbf{1}, \mathrm{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{r}$ ) are regularly represented by $\mathbf{1 , m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ (not always respectively) in the Aryan languages and B. (See section VII.).
vi. Radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}$ become d, sd, $\mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s t}, \mathbf{t}$, or $(\mathbf{z})$ in the Aryan languages. (See section viri.).
vii. In B., ch, tch, (cht), s, ts, (st), $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{t z}$, and ( $\mathbf{z t}$ ) are more or less freely interchanged and may each represent radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s}^{2}, \mathbf{s}^{3}$.

Go. анша, water, stream, river.
A.-S. ea, water, running water, stream, river.
L. aqua, water.

7n. A. -S.-All the radicals have disappeared from A.-S. ea. The meanings of Go. aнwa and of A.-S. ea do not directly indicate that these words are (as I take them to be) cognate with H. hagam.
8.

9a. H. .hagar, to gather, collect; to lay up (provisions).

9b. G. CRuinnich, to gather, collect.
G. cruin(n)eachd (cruithneachd), wheat.
L. Grex (genitive, Greais), herd, flock, swarm; Grego, to collect, assemble.

Gr. ageiro ${ }^{2}$, to gather, collect.
Go. hairda, herd, flock.
A.-S. HEORd, herd, flock.

9 n . L.-The -G- of L. grego may be a suffix or may have arisen from partial reduplication. (See section xiv.).

Abstract

Anglo-Saxon (A.-S.), Latin (L.), Greek (Gr.), Sanskrit (S.), Basque (B.) viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and $B$. (See section x.). ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in H., $h^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in G., $\mathbf{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{t} ;$ in Go., d, $\mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; in A.-S., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{h}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in L., $\mathbf{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathbf{i}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}, \mathbf{s}$, $\mathbf{t}$; and in B., $\mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t z},-\mathbf{t u}(-\mathrm{du})$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section xir.). x. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value. xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section $\mathrm{x}_{\mathrm{s}}$ ). xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal" or "p ${ }^{2}(\mathrm{e}) h^{4}$ al." Under - a. and under -b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

10.

(Root, G-R-P).

10a. H. .heg(e)rop, the fist.
10b. Go. Greipan, to seize, lay hand upon, gripe.
A.-S. Gripan, to seize, gripe.
S. $\mathrm{GR}^{3} \mathrm{AB}^{2}$, to seize with the hand.
10n. Radical G- has appeared as G - in Go. greipan, etc.,doubtless in consequence of contiguous -R-. (See section xi.).

> 11.
> (Root, H-v-D).

11a. H. HED, mist, vapor (is- 11b. B. HODei (odei), mist, suing from the earth and form- cloud. ing clouds).

Go. hwatho, foam, froth.
A.-S. aетнm, vapor, breath.
S. $a^{2} T^{3} m^{2} a n^{5}$, breath.

Gr. aтmos, steam, vapor.
12.
(Root, H-D-N).

12a. H. hadoun, owner, master, lord.

12b. G. атнаir, father.
Go. атта, father.
B. аіта, father.
L. атта, (a salutation used to old men, [like]) father.
S. $a T^{3} \mathrm{~T}^{3} \mathrm{a}^{2}$, mother, a mother's sister, an elder sister; mother-in-law.

[^11]Gr. атта, (a salutation used to elders, [like]) father.
12 n . G.-The -r in G. atнair is doubtless cognate with the -r in English "father" and of uncertain origin. (See entries 1, 43, 194, 219, 791).
13.
(Root, H-D-м).

13a. H. hadam, man.
13b. G. Duive, man.
13 n . Of course, in this and the following entry radical -m may have been lost from the Aryan words, the nasals of which may be suffixes.
14.
(Root, H-D-M).

14a. H. .hadom (.ifadem), to be red, ruddy, reddish-brown.

14b. G. Donn, brown, dun. A.-S. Dun, dun.
15.
(Root, H-D-м).
15a. H. hadamah ${ }^{2}$, earth, 15 b . G. Domhan, the universe, ground, land, country, the the globe, the whole world. (whole) earth.
16.
(Root, H-D-R).
16a. H. heder, a wide cloak, 16b. B. atorra, chemise. mantle.
17.
(Root, $\mathrm{H}-\mathrm{H}^{2}-\mathrm{L}$ ).

17a. Н. нон ${ }^{2}$ еL, tent, tabernacle; dwelling, habitation, house; (specially,) temple.

17b. Go. hlija, tent, tabernacle; Heeithra, tent, hut.
A.-S. heall, residence, hall.

17n. Etymologists do not connect Go. hlija, etc., with A.-S. heall.
18.
(Root, $\mathrm{H}-\mathrm{V}-\mathrm{H}^{2}$ ).
18a. H. * Havah $^{2}$, to desire, 18b. L. aveo, to long for, delong for; .havvah ${ }^{2}$, desire, long- sire earnestly, crave. ing (for food; of sexual desire); desire, pleasure, will.
19.
(Root, H-v-L).

19a. H. .hwl, (plural,) the mighty, the powerful, the chief.

19b. Go. waldan, to rule, govern; waldufni, power, authority.
A.-S. wealdan, to possess, rule; wealdend, powerful, wielding authority.
20.
(Root, H-v-N).

20a. H. haven, nothingness,
20b. Go. wans, lacking, wantvanity; falsehood, deceit; iniquity; misery. ing.
A.-S. wan, lack, want.
L. vanus, empty; fruitless, vain; false, lying, deceptive; vanum, nothingness, naught.
21.
(Root, H-V-R).
21a. H. .hour, to shine, be bright; to give light; to light,

21b. Go. hauri, (plural,) haurja, burning coals; a fire.

kindle, (set on fire); HWr, light (of fire); flame, blaze, fire; ноиr, light, daylight, morning-light.
A.-S. HEORth, fireplace, hearth.

Icelandic Hyrr, embers of fire.
Go. air, early.
A.-S. aer, early.

Gr. $e^{2}$ ri, early.
21n. Etymologists have not, of course, considered English hearth cognate with English early. They do not consider English early cognate with Gr. $e^{2}$ ri.

22b. Go. aiths, oath.
A.-S. атн, oath. ment, proof, assurance, (attestation).

22n. I regard the $-\mathrm{T}^{2}$ in H. hout ${ }^{2}$ as cognate with the -тн(etc.) in Go. aiths; (etc.), although they are suffixes. (See also section xir.).
23.

24a. H. *hazan, to hearken, hear; hozen, ear.

24b. G. eisd, to listen, hearken, hear.

Go. hausjan, to hear; auso, ear.

[^12]A.-S. hyran, to hear; Hyrcnian, to hearken; eare, ear.
L. audio, to hear; auris, ear.

Gr. ous (genitive, $\boldsymbol{o}^{2}$ тos), ear.
B. enzun, to listen, hear.

24n. A.-S.-The -r- in A.-S. hyran, etc., is for earlier *-s-, which, in turn, is for radical -z-. (See section ix.).
L.-The connection between L. audio and L. auris has not been (but will, I trust, now be) clear to etymologists.
B. -The -N - in B. enzun doubtless points to a radical [ ${ }^{*} \mathrm{~N}-\mathrm{z}-\mathrm{N}$ ] parallel with $\mathrm{H}-\mathrm{Z}-\mathrm{N}$.

iv. Radical $\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{y}$, radical $\mathbf{n}$ initial, and radical $\mathbf{I}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}$, $\mathbf{r}$ final are often lost in the Aryan languages and $\mathrm{B}_{\text {. }}$ (See sections v . and vir.).
 tively) in the Aryan languages and B. (See section ViI.).
vi. Radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}$ become d, sd, $\mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s t}, \mathbf{t}$, or ( $\mathbf{z}$ ) in the Aryan languages. (See section viri.).
vii. In B., ch, tch, (cht), $s, t s,(s t), z, t z$, and (zt) are more or less freely interchanged and may each represent radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s}^{2}, \mathbf{s}^{3}$.

Go.-Etymologists regard the Teutonic and L. forms as nasalized; that is, the -n - is intrusive. I derived in part the clew to the real meaning of Go. and A.-S. hund, L. centum, etc., from G. ceud, which means both "first" and "hundred." Etymologists have supposed English hundred to mean literally "tenth count," whereas the real meaning (as I see it) is "first count." Go. has two ways of verbally indicating 100 : (1) by taihun-taihund, which is literally "ten tens"; and (2) by Hund, which is, as "we saw above, literally "first (count)." (See also section xvir. and compare H. helep, thousand, that is, tenth (count), in entry 42).
27.

27a. H. HAH ${ }^{3}$ w, reeds, sedge,
27b. B. іні, rush, bulrush. bulrushes.

27n. Some etymologists regard H. нан ${ }^{3}$ W as of Egyptian origin. Did the word come into B. directly from Egyptian?
28.

28a. H. HAн $^{3}$ AZ, to seize,catch, lay hold of, take (especially with the hand; also of a snare); to hold, hold fast; to shut, bar.

28b. S. $\mathrm{H}^{2} \mathrm{As}^{2} \mathrm{~T}^{3} \mathrm{a}$, hand.
Go. handus, hand.
A.-S. Hand, hand.
L. prehendo, to lay hold of, grasp, seize.
B. hastatu, to touch, handle, feel.
B. iснi, shut, closed, bolted.

28 n. Etymologists consider S. $H^{2} \mathrm{AS}^{2} \mathrm{~T}^{3} \mathrm{a}$ cognate with L. hasta, spear, which I refer to the root $\mathrm{h}^{4}-\mathrm{z}^{2}-\mathrm{h}^{2}$, in entry 553. They [^13]have not considered $\mathrm{S} . \mathrm{H}^{2} \mathrm{As}^{2} \mathrm{~T}^{3} \mathrm{a}$ cognate with Go. Handus, etc. They consider L. preHendo cognate, not with Go. handus, etc., but with Go. bigitan and A.-S. begitan, which I have placed in entry 290. They regard as intrusive the -n- of Go. handus, etc. (See also section vii.).

A.-S. Geostra (adjective), of yesterday.
L. heri, yesterday.
S. $H^{2} Y_{A S}{ }^{2}$, yesterday.

Gr. chthes, yesterday.
Go. wairthan, to come to pass, arise; to be born.
A.-S. weorthan, to come to be; to arise; to come to pass; to happen.
L. verto, to turn out (well, badly); to turn, change, alter, transform.
S. $\mathrm{VRT}^{3}$, to become; to happen, take place, occur; to arise; to abide, dwell.
B. gerthatu, to happen,come to pass, fall out, occur.
G. ur, fresh, new, recent; tail; child; iarogh, great-grandchild.
B. haur, child.

29 n . G.-Radical $\mathrm{H}-$ and $-\mathrm{H}^{3}$ - have been lost from all the G. words here given except that $-\mathrm{H}^{3}$ - has been preserved in Heriu, which is ancient and which is either not a native G. word or is all but solitary in pointing to a time when G. had a stable $h$ independent.
B.-In B. gero and geroa, radical h- has been lost and radical $-\mathrm{H}^{3}$ - has been hardened to G -. From B. jarri and jarraitu if cognate with $H$. $\boldsymbol{H A H}^{3} \mathrm{Ar}$, radical H - and $-\mathrm{H}^{3}$ - have been lost.
viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.).
ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in $H$., $h^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in G., $c, d, g, \mathbf{n}, \mathrm{t}$; in Go., $\mathbf{d}$, $\mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; in A.-S., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{h}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in L., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; and in $\mathrm{B}_{\mathbf{\prime}}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t z},-\mathbf{t u}(-\mathbf{d u})$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section xir.).
x. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value.
xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x .).
xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal" or "p ${ }^{2}$ (e) $h^{4}$ al." Under -a. and under -b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].
A.-S.-The w- in A.-S. west represents radical $-\mathrm{H}^{3}$-. The -sin the same word is from radical -R as is also the -s- in A.-S. geostra. Etymologists have not, of course, considered these words cognate.
L.-The three forms of the L. name for Ireland are very in-structive,-Ierna representing a loss of radical H- and -H"-; Iverna showing a loss of radical $\mathrm{H}-$ and also a loss of radical $-\mathrm{H}^{3}$ - after allowing -v- to creep in; Hibernia preserving radical H- and losing radical $-\mathrm{H}^{3}$ - after allowing [*-v-] (later becoming -b-) to creep in.

Go.-In Go. gistra-dagis, radical H - has been lost and radical $-H^{3}$ - has been strengthened to G-, as also in A.-S. geostra and Icelandic gaer (gör). Etymologists have queried how these words could mean both "yesterday" and "tomorrow." The meanings of H . $\boldsymbol{H A H}^{3} \mathrm{AR}$, to be behind; to be after, clear up this obscurity.

Gr.-Both radical $\mathrm{H}-$ and $-\mathrm{H}^{3}$ - have been lost from Gr. aurion. Etymologists admit the intrusion of -th- in Gr. chthes. They do not treat Gr. aurion and Gr. cethes as cognate.
S.--The $-s^{2}$ in S. $H^{2}$ YAs $^{2}$ is evidently from radical -R , as also the -s in Gr. chthes. The $-\mathrm{T}^{3}$ in S. $\mathrm{vrt}^{3}$, etc., is cognate with $-\mathrm{T}^{2}$ (which is not radical) in H. HaH ${ }^{3}$ Aryt $^{2}$. (See section xit.).

31n. A.-S.-The -G in A.-S. ig would seem to indicate that the medial letter of the root was [*-y-] rather than -v-. Moreover, it seems probable that the cognate G. word would have contained в or $\mathbf{F}$ if the medial letter of the root had been -v-.

(See sections iII. and Iv.).
iv. Radical $\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{y}$, radical $\mathbf{n}$ initial, and radical $\mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ final are often lost in the Aryan languages and B. (See sections V. and vii.).
$\mathbf{v}$. Radical liquids ( $\mathbf{l}, \mathrm{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ ) are regularly represented by $\mathbf{l}, \mathrm{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathbf{r}$ (not always respectively) in the Aryan languages and B . (See section vir.).
vi. Radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}$ become $\mathbf{d}, \mathbf{s d}, \mathbf{s}$, $\mathbf{s t}, \mathrm{t}$, or ( $\mathbf{z}$ ) in the Aryan languages. (See section viif.).
vii. In B., ch, tch, (cht), $\mathbf{s}$, $\mathbf{t s}$, ( $\mathbf{s t}$ ), $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{t z}$, and ( $\mathbf{z t}$ ) are more or less freely interchanged and may each represent radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathrm{z}^{2}, \mathrm{~s}, \mathrm{~s}^{2}, \mathrm{~s}^{3}$.
S. cat ${ }^{3}$ r $^{3}$, four; astan ${ }^{5}$, eight.

35 n . On the formation of numeral words in the Aryan languages, see section xvir. I do not feel at all certain that the -k-(-c-, c-) of these numeral words is referable to the root implied in H. нак(e). For reasons adduced in section xvir., it is highly improbable that the -ека in B. hameка should be considered cognate with Aryan words.

G. GLut, to eat gluttonously; glam, to devour, gobble; glamh, to eat greedily; glaim, a large mouthful; glaidean, glutton.
L. gula, gullet; glutio, to swallow, gulp down.
S. $\mathrm{ac}^{3}$, to eat.

Gr. акоцоs, morsel; aiklon, an evening meal (at Sparta).

36n. B.-Note the transposition in the B. words here given and see section xiII.
G.-The G- instead of [ ${ }^{*} \mathrm{c}-$ ] in the G. words here given is probably due to the influence of the -L-. (See section xi.).

87 n . The current etymology of English abash and bashful is not wholly satisfactory. There is only a remote probability, however, that these words are cognate with H. в ${ }^{2}$ ous $^{3}$. On the possibility of radical $s^{3}$ becoming sh in English, see also entry 653.

viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.).
ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in $H$., $h^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in $\mathbf{G} ., \mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in Go., $\mathbf{d}$, Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section Xir.).
x. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value.
xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x.).
xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and, A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal" or "p2(e)h ${ }^{4}$ al." Under -a. and under -b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

93n. I query whether Go. bagms, etc., are cognate with H. в ${ }^{2}($ е канум, the $-\mathrm{m}-$ in Go. bagms; etc., being the sign of plurality long forgotten. If so, A.-S. beam has lost radical -K-H, for which the Icelandic form unaccountably has -DH-. .

Abstract

Anglo-Saxon (A.-S.), Latin (L.), Greek (Gr.), Sanskrit (S.), Basque (B.) viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in tne Aryan languages and B. (See section x.). ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in $H ., \mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in G., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in Go., d, $\mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; in A.-S., $\mathbf{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{h}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{t}$; in L., $\mathrm{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathbf{1}, \mathrm{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}, \mathbf{s}, \mathrm{t}$; and in $\mathrm{B}_{0}, \mathbf{n}, \mathrm{tz},-\mathbf{t u}(-\mathrm{du})$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section xir.). $x$. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value. xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section X.). xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qa!" or "p2(e)h"al." Under - a . and under - b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

L. voro, to eat greedily, devour.

(See sections iII. and IV.). iv. Radical $\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{y}$, radical $\mathbf{n}$ initial, and radical $\mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ final are often lost in the Aryan languages and B. (See sections V. and vir.). $\mathbf{v}_{0}$ Radical liquids ( $\mathbf{1 , m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ ) are regularly represented by $\mathbf{1 , m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ (not always respectively) in the Aryan languages and $B$. (See section vir.). vi. Radical $z, z^{2}$ become d, sd, $s, s t, t$, or $(z)$ in the Aryan languages. (See section viri.). vii. In B., ch, tch, (cht), $\mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t s}$, ( $\mathbf{s t}$ ), $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{t z}$, and ( $\mathbf{z t}$ ) are more or less freely interchanged and may each represent radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s}^{2}, \mathbf{s}^{3}$.

A.-S. ic, I.

139n. Radical -m- and -m have disappeared from all the words cited under 139b.
S.-H. G ${ }^{2}$ AM is often used to emphasize a pronoun; as, H. h ${ }^{2}$ yh $\mathrm{G}^{2}$ am $\mathrm{h}^{2}$ iuh, she even she (Genesis $20: 5$ ); H. -ny $\mathrm{G}^{2}$ am hany, me even me (Genesis $27: 34,38$ ). (See also Ezekiel 5:8; $16: 43$; Jeremiah 7:11; Zachariah 9:7; Zephaniah 2:12). On this principle I would derive S. $a H^{2} a m^{2}$, I; L. ego, I; etc. The $-\mathrm{m}^{2}$ of $S . a H^{2} a m^{2}$ I take to be a fragment of the primary form of the first personal pronoun. So, too, I would account for the m implied by the -o of L. ego, etc. These emphatic forms of the first personal pronoun at first followed (I take it) the primary form of the first personal pronoun appended to the verb. Later (I should say) the need of increased emphasis drew the emphatic form of the pronoun to the first position in the proposition. (See also section xviri.).

Abstract

Anglo-Saxon (A.-S.), Latin (L.), Greek (Gr.), Sanskrit (S.), Basque (B.) viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and $B$. (See section x .). ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in $H ., h^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in $\dot{G} ., \mathrm{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t} ; \mathbf{i n}$ Go., d, $\mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; in A.-S., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{h}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in $\mathrm{L} ., \mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; and in $\mathrm{B} ., \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t z},-\mathrm{tu}(-\mathrm{du})$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and $B$. (See section xir.). x . In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value. xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x.). xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal"" or "p ${ }^{2}$ (e) $h^{4}$ al." Under - a. and under - b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

harsh, hoarse sounds); (the external) throat, neck; $G^{2} A R(e)-$ $\mathrm{G}^{2}(\mathrm{E})$ Rout $^{2}$, (the external) throat, neck.

146n. The neck of the crane is very long and the cry very harsh. I have given two H. words for "throat, neck." Possibly the A.-S. cran and the Gr. geranos are cognate directly with $H$. $\mathrm{g}^{2}$ aroun; and the L. grus and the B. garkhora are cognate rather with $H$. $\mathrm{G}^{2} \mathrm{AR}(\mathrm{e}) \mathrm{G}^{2}(\mathrm{E})$ Rout ${ }^{2}$. The root of $\mathrm{H} . \mathrm{G}^{2} \mathrm{Aroun}$ is thought by some to be G-r-n. A.-S. cran, etc., would seem to support the supposition.
147.
(Root, G-R-Z).
147a. H. $\mathrm{g}^{2} \mathrm{AR}(\mathrm{E})$ zen, axe.
147b. B. aizкова, axe.
147 n . I take B. aizkora to be an instance of transposition. (See section xiII.).
148.
(Root, G-R-M).
148a. H. G ${ }^{2}$ erem, bone.
148b. G. cnaime, bone.
148 n . Radical -R - has become -N - (which is pronounced as r ) in G. cnaimh.
149.
(Root, G-R-N).

149a. H. Goren, threshingfloor; (by figure,) the grain itself.

149b. G. gran, grain, dried corn.

Go. kaurn, grain, seed, corn. A.-S. corn, berry, grain, seed, corn.

[^30]L. granum, a grain, seed, small kernel.
149 n . In the words cited under 149b., note that radical $\mathrm{G}-$ appears as c-followed by a vowel or as G - followed by -R-. (See section xı.).
150.
(Root, G-R-s ${ }^{3}$ ).
150a. H. . G $^{2}$ ERES $^{3}$, produce,
150b. Go. gras, herb, grass. fruit, yield (from the earth); A.-S. gaers, herb, hay, grass. $\operatorname{mig}(\mathrm{E})$ ras $^{3}$, a pasture (whither herds are driven to graze).
151.
(Root, D-B-H?).
151a. H. D²ıв(e)younym, 151b. Go. hraiwa-dubo, turdove's dung. tle-dove.
151 n . The exact meaning of $\mathrm{H} . \mathrm{D}^{2} \mathrm{IB}(\mathrm{e})$ younym is uncertain. H. younah ${ }^{2}$ means "dove."

(Root, D-B-R).
152a. H. .dªbar, to speak, 152b. G. deir (abair) (perutter; $\mathrm{D}^{2}$ abar, word, speech; fect tense, dubhras), to say. . $D^{2}$ IB(E) Rah ${ }^{2}$, cause, reason.
G. adHbHar, cause, reason.
S. $\mathrm{BR}^{3} \mathbf{u}^{2}$, to say, tell; to speak to.
152 n . G.-The perfect tense of G. deir (abair) is dubhras and points unmistakably to $\mathrm{H} . .^{2} \mathrm{D}^{2} \mathrm{BAR}$ as a cognate.
S.-Radical D- has (I take it) been lost from S. $\mathrm{BR}^{3} \mathbf{u}^{2}$.

153a. H. d ${ }^{2}$ agan, corn, grain; 153b. Go. daigs, dough; deigbread. an, to knead.
A.-S. DAH, dough.

153n. Go.-I take the Go. verb deigan to be denominate; that is, derived from the noun. Etymologists, however, regard the noun as derived from the verb.

154.

(Root, D-G-R).

154a. H. . ${ }^{2}$ Agar, to brood, sit upon (as a bird her eggs or young); to hatch.

154b. G. GUR (GUIR), to lie upon eggs as a hen; to hatch.

Manx guir, to brood, hatch; to cluck.

Welsh deor, to brood, hatch; gori, to brood; iar yn gori, a hen hatching.
154 n . The exact meaning of H. . $\mathrm{D}^{2} \mathrm{Agar}$ is undetermined. Will not the words and meanings cited under 154 b . help substantiate those of H. . ${ }^{2}$ agar given under 154a., which were adopted by Gesenius? The Welsh forms deor and gori point unmistakably to the root $\mathrm{D}-\mathrm{G}-\mathrm{R}$.

Radical $h, h^{2}$ final are regularly quiescent in $H$. and unrepresented in the Aryan languages and $B$. (See section inI.).
iii. Radical gutturals and palatals ( $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{h}^{3}, \mathbf{h}^{4} ; \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{k}, \mathbf{q}$ ) may become, in Go., A.S., and $\mathbf{L}, \mathbf{h}, \mathrm{k}(\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{q}), \mathrm{g} ; \mathrm{or}, \mathrm{hw}(\mathbf{v}), \mathrm{k}(\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{q}) \mathbf{w}(\mathbf{v})$, (?) $\mathrm{gw}(\mathbf{v}) ;$ or, $\mathbf{w}(\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{b}, \mathbf{f}, \mathrm{p}$, in L.). (See sections iII. and iv.).
iv. Radical $\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{y}$, radical $\mathbf{n}$ initial, and radical $\mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ final are often lost in the Aryan languages and B. (See sections v. and vii.).
$\mathbf{v}$. Radical liquids ( $\mathbf{1}, \mathrm{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{r}$ ) are regularly represented by $\mathbf{1 , m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{r}$ (not always respectively) in the Aryan languages and B. (See section vii.).
vi. Radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}$ become $\mathbf{d}, \mathbf{s d}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s t}, \mathbf{t}$, or ( $\mathbf{z}$ ) in the Aryan languages. (See section viri.).
vii. In B., ch, tch, (cht), $\mathbf{s}$, ts, (st), $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{t z}$, and ( $\mathbf{z t}$ ) are more or less freely interchanged and may each represent radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s}^{2}, \mathbf{s}^{3}$.
S. $\mathrm{T}^{3} \mathrm{~A}^{2} \mathrm{~T}^{3} \mathrm{a}$, a term of affection addressed to a junior or senior; father.

157a. H. D ${ }^{2}$ (E) you, ink.
157b. G. dubh, black; ink.
157 n . The primary meaning of the root $\mathrm{D}-\mathrm{v}-\mathrm{H}^{2}$ is unknown. Possibly G. dube may reveal it. I think it scarcely conceivable that the meaning "ink" could have belonged to the root or its derivatives before the $G$. peoples began their first migration; but see also entry 286.

The meanings given under 176a., it will be noted, include both sets given under 176b.; that is, to be and to have. For the change of construction that (I judge) has come to Go. haban, English have, etc., compare the construction of English "like" in "I like it" for earlier English "It likes me." Etymologists have not, of course, considered English be and have cognate.

viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and $B$. (See section $x$.).
ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in H., $h^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in G., $c, d, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in Go., $d$, $\mathrm{g}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{s}, \mathrm{t}$; in A.-S., $\mathrm{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{h}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{t}$; in L., $\mathrm{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathbf{l}, \mathrm{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{r}, \mathrm{s}, \mathrm{t}$; and in B., $\mathrm{n}, \mathrm{tz},-\mathrm{tu}(-\mathrm{du})$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section xir.).
$x$. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value.
xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x .).
xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal" or "p2(e)h"al." Under - a. and under - b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

190n. The Aryan value (d, sd, s, st, $t$, or $(z)$ ) of radical $z$ is in part beautifully exemplified under 190b. where it equals st-in English star, $\mathrm{s}^{2} \mathrm{~T}^{3}-$ in S . $\mathrm{s}^{2} \mathrm{~T}^{3} \mathrm{Rn}^{4} a \mathrm{~s}^{2}$ (?), $\mathrm{T}^{3}-$ in S . $\mathrm{T}^{3} \mathrm{~A}^{2} \mathrm{R}^{3} \mathrm{as}^{2}$, and s - in Welsh seren.
S.-Lexicographers query whether S. $\mathrm{s}^{2} \mathrm{~T}^{3} \mathrm{Rn}^{4} \mathrm{as}^{2}$ (nominative form, plural) occurs. Oblique forms, plural, are found.
H.-Etmyologists have not referred H. mazzarout ${ }^{2}$ (mazzaLout ${ }^{2}$ ) to the root $\mathrm{z}-\mathrm{H}^{2}-\mathrm{R}$. I think the forms are properly referable to that root.

192b. G. ітн (ios), to eat.
Go. itan, to eat.
A.-S. etan, to eat. Go. wisan, to eat.
A.-S. wist, food.
L. edo, to eat. S. $\mathrm{ad}^{3}$, to eat. Gr. esthio ${ }^{2}$ (edo ${ }^{2}$ ), to eat.

192n. Some lexicographers do not assign the meaning "to feed" to H. *yazan. It seems to me that the Go. and A.-S. double forms reflect the double forms found in 192a.; that is, Go. ітаn, etc., are referable to the root $\mathrm{z}-\mathrm{v}-\mathrm{n}$; and Go. wisan, etc., come from the root Y-Z-N.

1. Roots tend to become monosyllabic in the Aryan languages and B. (See section $x_{0}$ ).

iii. Radical gutturals and palatals ( $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{h}^{3}, \mathbf{h}^{4} ; \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{k}, \mathbf{q}$ ) may become, in Go., A.-S., and $\mathbf{L}, \mathrm{h}, \mathrm{k}(\mathrm{c}, \mathbf{q}), \mathrm{g}$; or, $\mathrm{hw}(\mathbf{v}), \mathrm{k}(\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{q}) \mathbf{w}(\mathbf{v}),($ ? $) \mathbf{g w}(\mathbf{v})$; or, $\mathbf{w}(\mathbf{v}, \mathrm{b}, \mathrm{f}, \mathrm{p}$, in L.). S. $\mathrm{D}^{3} \mathrm{UH}^{2} \mathrm{it}{ }^{3} \mathrm{r}$, daughter.

Gr. thugate ${ }^{2}$ r, daughter.
B. сНани, pure, clean.

194n. The forms cited under 194b. might equally well be referred to the root d-v-h ${ }^{3}$ (entry $156 ; H . * d^{2} w(a) h^{3}$, to cleanse), perhaps more suitably if the forms alone be considered; but the meanings "upright" and "innocent" (as well as "pure" and "clean") belonging to $\mathrm{H} . \operatorname{zaK}(\mathrm{e})$ cause me to assign Go. daurtar, etc., to the root z-к-к.

On the suffix of the Aryan words here cited, see entries 1, 12, 43, 219, 791.

By consulting entries 298, 379, 479, (560), 791, it will be seen that our remote ancestors viewed their daughters and sisters as cleanly, pure, innocent, fair, etc. Thus, G. nighean (entry 479), girl, daughter, means literally (as I see it) "white, clean, pure, innocent"; B. alaba (entry 379), daughter, literally "white, clean, pure"; and English "sister" (entry 791) has radically the meaning "white, like marble or alabaster," probably also the readily derivable meanings "pure" and "innocent."

Abstract

Anglo-Saxon (A.-S.), Latin (L.), Greek (Gr.), Sanskrit (S.), Basque (B.) viii. When the medıal and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x .). ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in $H ., h^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in G., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{t}$; in Go., d, $\mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; in A.-S., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{h}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in $\mathrm{L}_{\mathrm{L}}, \mathrm{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; and in $\mathrm{B}_{.,} \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t z},-\mathbf{t u}(-\mathrm{du})$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section xir.). $x$. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value. xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x .). xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal", or "p2(e)h4al." Under - a. and under -b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

A.-S. ut, out, not within doors, abroad.
225 n . Go.-Etymologists have considered Go. us a variant of Go. ut (or vice versa). The radical $-z^{2}$ accounts for the variation.

Abstract

Anglo-Saxon (A.-S.), Latin (L.), Greek (Gr.), Sanskrit (S.), Basque (B.) viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.). ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in $H . h^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in G., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in Go., d, $\mathrm{g}, \mathrm{n}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; in A.-S., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{h}, \mathrm{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in $\mathrm{L}_{.,} \mathrm{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathbf{1}, \mathrm{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathbf{r}, \mathbf{s}, \mathrm{t}$; and in $\mathrm{B}_{.,} \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t z},-\mathbf{t u}(-\mathrm{du})$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and $B$. (See section xir.). $x$. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value. xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x .). xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal" or "p ${ }^{2}(e) h^{4}$ al." Under -a. and under - b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

i. Roots tend to become monosyllabic in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.).
ii. Radical gutturals ( $h, h^{2}, h^{3}, h^{4}$ ) are regularly lost in G., and are often lost (especially $h$, $\mathbf{h}^{2}$ ) in the other Aryan languages and B. Radical h, $\mathbf{h}^{2}$ final are regularly quiescent in H. and unrepresented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section ini.).
iii. Radical gutturals and palatals ( $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{h}^{3}, \mathbf{h}^{4} ; \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{k}, \mathbf{q}$ ) may become, in Go., A.-S., and L., h, $k(c, q), g$; or, $h w(v), k(c, q) w(v),(?) g w(v)$; or, $w(v, b, f, p$, in L.). (See sections III. and IV.).
iv. Radical $\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{y}$, radical $\mathbf{n}$ initial, and radical $\mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ final are often lost in the Aryan languages and B. (See sections V. and VII.).
$\mathbf{v}$. Radical liquids ( $\mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ ) are regularly represented by $\mathbf{1 , m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ (not always respectively) in the Aryan languages and $B$. (See section vii.).
vi. Radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}$ become $\mathbf{d , s d}, \mathbf{s}$, $s t, \mathbf{t}$, or $(\mathbf{z})$ in the Aryan languages. (See section viri.).
vii. In B., ch, tch, (cht), $\mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t s}$, ( $\mathbf{s t}$ ), $\mathbf{z , t z}$, and ( $\mathbf{z t}$ ) are more or less freely interchanged and may each represent radical $z, z^{2}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s}^{2}, \mathbf{s}^{3}$.

289n. A.-S.-Etymologists suppose (rightly, I think) that A.-S. wyscan was once *wynscan as is indicated by the form of the cognate words in other Teutonic languages. This *-n-, however, must have been intrusive. (See section vir. and entries 302, 339, 357).
S.-I have treated $\mathrm{S} . \mathrm{va}^{2} \mathrm{n}^{2} \mathrm{KS}$ as possibly an instance of transposition. (See section xiri.). It should, however, be observed that "The compound ks [in S.] is not infrequent as final of a root (generally of demonstrably secondary origin)" (Whitney's S. Grammar, section 221).

Abstract

Anglo-Saxon (A.-S.), Latin (L.), Greek (Gr.), Sanskrit (S.), Basque (B.) viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section X.). ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in $H_{0}, h^{2}, y, n, t^{2} ;$ in $G ., \mathrm{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{t} ;$ in Go., $\mathbf{d}$, $\mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; in A.-S., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{h}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in L., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{i}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; and in B., $\mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t z},-\mathbf{t u}(-\mathbf{d u})$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and $B$. (See section xir.). x. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value. xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x.). xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal"" or "p2(e)h hal." Under -a. and under -b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

Go. fraнintнаи, to take captive; ushinthan, to take captive; Hunths, captivity.
A.-S. hentan, to pursue; geнentan, to take, seize; Huntian, to hunt.

290n. Etymologists do not consider A.-S. beriitan and Go. bigitan cognate with any other words cited in this entry. They regard as intrusive the -n- in Go. framinthan, etc., and consider thẹ words cognate with Go. handus and A.-S. hand, which I have placed in entry 28. (On intrusive n, see section vir.).

L.-An old form of L. Lacrima is said to have had D- in place of $\mathrm{L}-$. The change to $\mathrm{L}-$ is probably accidental.
S.-Radical т- has probably been lost from S . $\operatorname{ac}^{3} \mathrm{R}^{3} \mathrm{u}$.

Abstract

Anglo-Saxon (A.-S.), Latin (L.), Greek (Gr.), Sanskrit (S.), Basque (B.) viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x .). ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in H., $h^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in G., c, d, g, $\mathbf{n}, \mathrm{t}$; in Go., $\mathbf{d}$, $\mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; in $\mathrm{A} .-\mathrm{S}, \mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{h}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in $\mathrm{L}_{.,} \mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; and in $\mathrm{B}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t z},-\mathbf{t u}(-\mathbf{d u})$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section xir.). x . In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value. xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section $\mathrm{x}_{\mathrm{t}}$ ). . xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Bib-" lical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal", or "pp(e)h ${ }^{4}$ al." Under - a. and under -b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

324 n . L.-For an explanation of the relation which I conceive to exist between L. manus and L. omnis, see section xvir.

The -mon- seen in L. vadimonium is a suffix, occurring in many L. words. For the origin of vad- in L. vadimonium, see entry 313.

English.-The history of English henchman is obscure. I have no doubt that the true origin of the word is here indicated. (See also entry 34).

Go.-I take English man to be an abbreviation of English henchman; that is, the latter is the older word. The meaning "bondman" belonging to Icelandic man points that way, as does also the fact that English "hand" often has the meaning "man, employé."
325.

325a. H. .yanaq, to suck(the mother's breast); to give suck, suckle; youneq, a suckling child.

325b. G. oG, young.
Manx ingan, the young of beasts.

Go. JuGgs, young; JuHiza, younger (Luke 15:12, 13).
A.-S. iUng (Geong), young, youthful.
L. iuvenis, a young person; iuvencus, young.
S. yuvan ${ }^{5}$, young.

325 n . G.-Note thet radical -N - has been lost from G. og but preserved in Manx ingar and in the Go. juggs and the A.-S. iung. (See also entries 51, 77).

[^53]Go.-Double g (gg) in Go. is pronounced as -ng in English young. Note the loss of radical -N - from the Go. лuriza (the comparative form of JUGGS).
L.-Radical -N - has been lost from L. iuvenis, etc., and from S. yuvan ${ }^{5}$ and radical -Q has given rise to -v-. The L. and S . words here given may be an instance of transposition. (See section xili.).

334a. H. yaras ${ }^{3}$, to occupy (mostly by force); to drive out of a possession, dispossess, expel; to make poor.

334b. Go. wairsiza, worse.
A.-S. wirsa, worse.

English worse, to discomfit; worst, to defeat, overthrow, discomfit.
335.
(Roots, $\left.\mathrm{Y}-\mathrm{S}^{3}-\mathrm{H}^{2}(?), \mathrm{H}-\mathrm{S}^{3}-\mathrm{H}^{2}(?)\right)$.

335a. H. Yes ${ }^{3}$ ( His $^{3}$ ), being, existence; there is (to any one): [(by change of construction in translating,)] (he) has.

335 b . G. is, am, art, is, are.
Go. wisan, to be, exist, live; to abide, dwell; (with dative,) to be (to), belong (to): [(by change of construction in translating,)] to have.
A.-S. wesan, to be, exist, live, dwell; (with dative,) to belong (to) : [(by change of construction in translating,)] to have.
L. sum, to be, exist; (with dative,) to belong (to): [(by change of construction in translating,)] to have, possess.

[^55]S. $\mathrm{as}^{2}$, to be, exist, live; to abide, dwell, stay; (with dative or genitive, ) to belong (to): [(by change of construction in translating,)] to have, possess.
S. vas ${ }^{2}$, to live, dwell.
B. izan, to be.

335n. I think English is and was cognate though etymologists do not so regard them. There is a possibility, however, that English was, Go. wisan, etc., are from a root $\mathrm{y}-\mathrm{s}^{3}-\mathrm{b}$ (H. yas ${ }^{3} \mathrm{ab}$, to sit, sit down; to stay, remain; to abide, dwell), with loss of the -b. (See section x.). For the origin of English "be", see entry 176.

The Phenician (and Ar.) word for "to be" is cognate with the H. word $*^{2}$ wn (entry 348). The fact, therefore, that the Aryan languages have, for the present and the past tense of their substantive verb, forms cognate with H. YEs ${ }^{3}$ ( $\mathrm{His}^{3}$ ), shows that the first coming of the Aryans into Europe (a remotely prehistoric event) could have had no fundamental connection with Phenician colonization (historic or prehistoric). (See also section iII., foot-note).

336a. H. . yas ${ }^{3}$ en, to fall asleep; to grow dry, old; to be old, inveterate (spoken of a person who has dwelt long in a country); yas ${ }^{3}$ an, dry, old (not new, spoken of grain of a former year); $\mathrm{s}^{3} \mathrm{Enah}^{2}$, sleep.

336b. G. suain, deep sleep.
G. sean, old, aged.

Go. sineigs, old; sinista, eldest.
L. senex (genitive, senis), old.
S. $s^{2} A N^{5} a$, old.

339b. G. athar, the evil effects or consequence of anything; atharrach, another; alternative; alteration, change.

Go. anthar, another; (the) rest, remainder; besides.
A.-S. other, other; (the) rest, remaining.
B. undar, remainder; final, last.

[^56]339n. Go.-The -n- in Go. anthar I take to be an unmistakable instance of verbal inflection brought with the Teutons on their first migration. Note that the nasal is lacking in the cognate G. words, indicating (I think) that the first migration of the G. peoples was earlier than that of the Teutonic peoples. It is to be remembered, however, that n is often intrusive in Teutonic words. (See section vir.).
A.-S.-Note that A.-S. other has not *-N- corresponding to the -n- in Go. anthar. (See section vii. and entries 289, 302, 357).

389 n. A.-S.-It is remotely possible, to say the least, that A.-S. lic-hama is not a compound word but has been made to appear so through the influence of -hama, which means "a covering" and forms the second member of many compound words in A.-S.

409a. H. maleh, to fill, make 409b: L. multus, much, great, full; to be full. many.
409n. Etymologists consider (rightly, I think) the L. comparative plus and the L. superlative plurimus cognate with L. plenus, full; that is, the first two words literally mean "fuller" and "full-

ii. Radical gutturals ( $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}, h^{3}, h^{4}$ ) are regularly lost in G., and are often lost (especially $\mathbf{h}$, $\mathbf{h}^{2}$ ) in the other Aryan languages and B. Radical $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}$ final are regularly quiescent in $H$. and unrepresented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section iri.).
iii. Radical gutturals and palatals (h, $\left.\mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{h}^{3}, \mathbf{h}^{4} ; \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{k}, \mathbf{q}\right)$ may become, in Go., A.-S., and $\mathbf{L}, \mathbf{h}, \mathbf{k}(\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{q}), \mathbf{g}$; or, $\mathbf{h w}(\mathbf{v}), \mathbf{k}(\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{q}) \mathbf{w ( v )}$, (?) $\mathbf{g w}(\mathbf{v}) ;$ or, $\mathbf{w}(\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{b}, \mathbf{f}, \mathbf{p}$, in L.). (See sections III. and iv.).
iv. Radical $\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{y}$, radical $\mathbf{n}$ initial, and radical $\mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ final are often lost in the Aryan languages and B. '(See sections V. and vir.).

est" respectively. Hence I conclude that the literal meaning of L. multus (which grammarians consider the positive of L. plus and L. plurimus) is "full" or, rather, "filled."
410.
(Root, L-H-K).
410a. H. mal(e)hak(e), one 410b. G. leigh, physician; sent, messenger; prophet, priest; m(e) laнкаh ${ }^{2}$, work, labor; service, minisstry (, of the Levites). surgeon, doctor.

Go. lekeis, physician; lekinon, to heal.
A.-S. laeca, physician, doctor, leech; lacnian, to heal.

French laquais, lackey.
410 n . The frequent identification of the physician with the priest in ancient times needs here no extended demonstration. The supposition that disease is often a divine visitation was very prevalent in antiquity and tended to make the practice of medicine proper to the priest. "And Aaron took as Moses commanded, and ran into the midst of the congregation; and, behold, the plague was begun among the people: and he put on incense and made atonement for the people. And he stood between the dead and the living; and the plague was stayed" (Numbers 16:47, 48).

The physician is a quasi-servant and minister to the sick. Physicians are expressly called servants in Genesis $50: 2$ : "And Joseph commanded his servants the physicians to embalm his father: and the physicians embalmed Israel." But in this case the word "servants" may be taken (and probably should be taken) in the general sense; for, in an autocracy, all are servants to the king.

411a. H. * malah $^{3}$, to vanish 411 b. Go. milhma, cloud. in dust, vanish (like smoke), be dissipated ([said of the heavens,] Isaiah 51:6).

411n. In Go. hliuma (entry 40) I treated -m- as radical, advisedly but possibly wrongly. In the present case (as also in entry 279), -ma is preceded by the usual complement of radical letters, and is therefore probably a suffix.
412.
(Root, M-L-T).

412a. H. *malat, to slip away; to escape; melet, cement, mortar.

412 n . A piece of ice on a warm day, a piece of lead or wax placed on hot coals, etc., illustrate beautifully the relation between the meanings of H. *malat and those of A.-S. meltan. Some etymologists hesitate to connect H. melet with H. *malat. The meanings of A.-S. meltan make the connection clear.

L. misceo, to mix.
S. $M^{2} I^{3} r^{3} a$, mixed.

Gr. misgo ${ }^{2}$ (mignumi), to mix.
418n. S.-Radical -s- has unexpectedly but unmistakably been lost from S. $\mathrm{m}^{2} \mathrm{IC}^{3} \mathrm{r}^{3} \mathrm{a}$ and Gr. (mignumi). Etymologists, however, have considered these forms as the earlier. They also regard English mix, which I take to be an instance of transposition (see section xiir.), as representing an earlier form than G. measg, etc.

(Root, S-P-H).

419a. H. mis(E) P²our, provender, fodder.

419b. G. sop, a wisp or handful of hay or straw.

[^66]419n. The history of English wisp is obscure. I think the word very probably a derivative of the root s-P-H, the w- of wisp being a prefix. (See also entries $715,779,780$ ).

G. coig (cuig), five.

445n. G.-Note that the G. verb and the G. adjective Nochd, by their form and definitions, link English naked (and its imimediate cognates) unmistakably with H. *nagad. For the connection between $H$. neged and G. nochd, night; etc., the reader should recall that the ancients regarded night as the fore part of a day: "And the evening and the morning were the first day" (Genesis 1:5). Etmyologists have not, of course, considered English naked and night cognate.
L.-I place L. quinque, etc., here in query. I think it probable that L. quinque once meant "one hand" (see section xvir.), having lost radical -D, which has (I think) been preserved as -Tin L. cunctus. Etymologists have variously derived L. сunctus but have not considered the word cognate with L. quinque. For the origin of the qu- in $L$. quinque and the $c$ - in L . cunctus, see entry 35 .

491n. Go.-It is unusual for Go. to have t where A.-S. has d, as in this entry. In entry 520 also, it will be observed that Go. has d- corresponding to A.-S. t-. Etymologists do not consider Go. taujan and A.-S. don cognate.
L.-Etymologists do not consider L. Dictionary, page 605, column 1). The definitions of H. nat ${ }^{2}$ an show that there is only one root for the words in question and that L. has not "confounded" things in this case but has, rather, kept uniform what sister languages have allowed to vary.

I think the -u- in Go. silubr may reasonably be regarded as coming from the -g of the first root and the $\mathrm{H}^{4}$ - of the second.

I conjecture that a phrase cognate with $\mathrm{H} . \mathrm{k}^{2}$ esep $\mathrm{H}^{4}$ Ober was anciently a name for money among the Teutonic peoples and that in time the second word of the phrase alone survived. When consisting of the white metal, money would then have been very properly called silver; that is, white money. Thereafter an extension of the application of the name to the metal when neither in the form of money nor in use as money, would have easily followed.

Abstract

Anglo-Saxon (A.-S.), Latin (L.), Greek (Gr.), Sanskrit (S.), Basque (B.) viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.). ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in H., $\mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in G., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t} ;$ in Go., d, $\mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; in A.-S., $\mathbf{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{h}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{t}$; in L., $\mathrm{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{i}, \mathrm{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathrm{r}, \mathbf{s}$, $\mathbf{t}$; and in $\mathrm{B} ., \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{tz},-\mathbf{t u}(-\mathrm{du})$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B . (See section xir.). x . In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value. xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x.). xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal" or "p ${ }^{2}(e) h^{4} a l$." Under - a. and under - b ., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

Icelandic hegri, heron.
517 n . H.--The exact meaning of $\mathrm{H} . \mathrm{H}^{4} \mathrm{AG}$. sibly the true meaning may be inferred from the meaning of A.-S. higera.
A.-S.-I think A.-S. hragra has arisen from reduplicating the root, radical $\mathrm{H}^{4}$ - being lost from each member of the resulting compound and radical -G - becoming $\mathbf{н}$ - in the first member. (See section xiv.).

The heron and the crane (see entry 146) are so much alike that the names are often popularly interchanged. "In several parts of the British Islands (especially Ireland) the name 'crane' is erroneously applied to the heron" (H. C. Hart, The Animals Mentioned in the Bible, page 70).

A.-S. waegn (waen), wagon, wain.
L. veho, to carry.
S. $\mathrm{VAH}^{2}$, to carry.

519 n . A.-S.-The various forms of the A.-S. word for wheel have been very serviceable to me in the present investigation. Note especially the varying fate of radical -G-, being - G - in A.-S. HWEOGUL, giving rise to the second -w- in A.-S. Hweowol, becoming -H- in A.-S. Hweohl, and wholly disappearing from A.-S. hweol.
S. - Radical $\mathrm{H}^{4}$ - has been strengthened to $\mathrm{C}-$ in $\mathrm{S} . \mathrm{CAKR}^{3} \mathrm{a}$ and to k - in Gr. kuklos.

Go.-Etymologists have not considered Go. wigs, A.-S. waeg, etc., cognate with A.-S. hweogul, etc.

viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.).
ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in $H ., h^{2}, y, n, t^{2}$; in G., c, d, g, $\mathbf{n}$, $\mathbf{t}$; in Go., d, $\mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; in $\mathrm{A} .-\mathrm{S} ., \mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{h}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in $\mathrm{L} ., \mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; and in $\left.\mathrm{B}_{\text {. }}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t z},-\mathbf{t u ( - d u}\right)$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section xir.).
$x$. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value.
xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x.).
xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal", or "p2(e)h"al." Under - a . and under - b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].
L. alo, to feed, nourish.

526n. I query whether English "child" (for which, see entry 138) may not belong rather in this entry. Etymologists have not, of course, connected the word with L. aLo.
527.

A.-S. yfel, bad, evil.

Icelandic illr, bad, evil, ill.
L. fallo, to deceive, trick, cheat; falsum, falsehood, fraud.

Gr. hubris, wantonness, insolence.

527 n. L.-Etymologists consider L. fallo cognate with Gr. sphallo ${ }^{2}$, which I have placed in entry 472. They have not, of course, considered English evil, etc., cognate with L. fallo.
528.
(Root, $\mathrm{H}^{4}-\mathrm{V}-\mathrm{R}$ ).

528a. H. . $\mathrm{H}^{4}$ wr, to rouse, awake; to rise; to raise, lift up; to stir up, excite (quarrels, strife; warriors to battle).

528b. G. eirich, to rise, get up; to rebel; einigh, rising, rebellion.
S. Gr, to be awake; to wake [(one) (Lanman)].

Gr. airo ${ }^{2}$, to raise, lift up.
Gr. egeiro ${ }^{2}$, to wake up; to erect (a building).

S. $H^{2} \mathrm{~L}^{3} \mathrm{~A}^{2} \mathrm{D}^{3}$, to be glad; to rejoice.
L. hilarus, merry, jovial.

Gr. hilaros, cheerful, merry, joyous.
542 n . The triple form of the root is instructive. (See also entry 638).

Go.-Etymologists have not considered Go. hlas cognate with A.-S. glaed, nor (I believe) either of these words cognate with L. laetus. They consider A.-S. glaed cognate with S. $\mathrm{H}^{2} \mathrm{~L}^{3} \mathrm{~A}^{2} \mathrm{D}^{3}$. The h- in Go. hlas and the g- in A.-S. glaed do not indicate cognation of these two words.
L.-Etymologists consider L. hilarus a loan-word from Gr. I think the word referable to the root $\mathrm{n}^{4}-\mathrm{L}-\mathrm{s}$. Does r in Gr. ever represent radical s? (See also entry 34). Possibly Gr. hilaros is a loan-word brought into Greece by the "fair-haired Achaeans," whom Ridgeway has shown probably to have been invaders from the north. (See The Early ${ }_{0}$ Age of Greece, by William Ridgeway, chapter iv.).

Note that the Hebrew predicate adjective ( $\mathrm{H}^{4}$ ARWM) in the passage (Genesis $3: 1$ ) here translated became a common name for the subject, in Gothic and Anglo-Saxon. #### Abstract

Anglo-Saxon (A.-S.), Latin (L.), Greek (Gr.), Sanskrit (S.), Basque (B.) viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x .). ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in H., $h^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, t^{2}$; in G., $c, d, g, n, t ;$ in Go., $d$,  Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section XII.). $x_{\text {. }}$ In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value. xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section X.). xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal", or "p ${ }^{2}(e) h$ "al." Under - a. and under -b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

587 n . The meanings of G. fasaich do not exactly indicate that the word is cognate with $\mathrm{H} . \mathrm{P}^{2} \mathrm{wz}^{2}$.

English. pitcher, a water jug or jar with a large ear or handle.

Gr. вікоs, an earthen winejar.
591n. English.-Etymologists regard English pitcher and beaker as cognate, and (wrongly, I think) the -R and $-r$ as suffixes.

Hebrew (H.), Aramaic (A.), Arabic (Ar.), Gaelic (G.), Gothic (Go.)
i. Roots tend to become monosyllabic in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x .).
ii. Radical gutturals ( $h, h^{2}, h^{3}, h^{4}$ ) are regularly lost in G., and are often lost (especially $\mathbf{h}$, $\mathbf{h}^{2}$ ) in the other Aryan languages and B. Radical $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}$ final are regularly quiescent in H. and unrepresented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section ini.).
iii. Radical gutturals and palatals ( $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{h}^{3}, \mathbf{h}^{4} ; \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{k}, \mathbf{q}$ ) may become, in Go., A.-S., and L., h, $\mathbf{k}(\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{q}), \mathrm{g}$; or, $\mathrm{hw}(\mathrm{v}), \mathbf{k}(\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{q}) \mathbf{w}(\mathbf{v}),($ ? $) \mathbf{g w}(\mathbf{v}) ;$ or, $\mathbf{w}(\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{b}, \mathrm{f}, \mathrm{p}$, in L.). (See sections III. and IV.).
iv. Radical $\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{y}$, radical $\mathbf{n}$ initial, and radical $\mathbf{1}, \mathrm{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathbf{r}$ final are often lost in the Aryan languages and B. (See sections v. and vir.).

vi. Radical $z, z^{2}$ become $d, s d, s, s t, t$, or $(z)$ in the Aryan languages. (See section viri.).
vii. In B., ch, tch, (cht), $s, t s$, ( $s t$ ), $z, t z$, and ( $z t$ ) are more or less freely interchanged and may each represent radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s}^{2}, \mathbf{s}^{3}$.

Gr.-Note the loss of radical -R from Gr. вікоs. (See section vii.).

A.-S. ploh, a plough of land.
S. $\mathrm{P}^{2} \mathrm{~A}^{2} \mathrm{~L}^{3} \mathrm{a}$, ploughshare; a ploughed field; a kind of hoe or shovel.
A.-S. FURH, furrow.

Go. filhan, to bury; to hide, conceal.

English filch, to pilfer, steal. G. fal, spade, scythe.
L. falx, (genitive, falcis), sickle, scythe.
A.-S. felg, felly, part of the circumference of a wheel.
A.-S. folgian, to serve, obey, follow as a servant (or) disciple; to go behind, follow.
A.-S. folc, crowd, people; a band of warriors; (plural,) warriors, fighting-men.

596n. A.-S.-Etymologists do not consider A.-S. feali cognate with any of the other words here cited. The same may be said of A.-S. ploh, etc., of A.-S. felg, of A.-S. furih, of A.-S. folgian, and of A.-S. folc. I treat A.-S. felg as cognate with H. . $\mathrm{P}^{2} \mathrm{ALAH}^{3}$, etc., on the supposition that the felly of a wheel was [^86]once the whole wheel. Even today one sees cart-wheels which have been made by perforating cross sections of a log. They closely resemble millstones. I conjecture that the modern wheel was developed by cutting away parts of the felly to reduce the weight, as well as to increase the beauty, of the wheel. Thus, we may readily imagine, felly became applicable only to the outer part of the wheel.

Go.-I insert here in query Go. filhan and English filch. Etymologists consider the two words cognate.

English.-Etymologists do not consider English fallow cognate with any other of the words here cited. It should be remarked, however, that in The Century Dictionary the descent of English fallow from A.-S. fealie, harrow, is mentioned as possible. (Further, Skeat conjectured possible kinship of A.-S. folc and A.-S. folgian).

602b. L. Fictor, maker, creator; one who makes images of clay, wood, etc.
L. faber, a worker in wood, stone, metal: artificer, carpenter. G. file, poet, bard.

602 n . L. -I think the -b- of L. faser probably stands for earlier [*-v-] descended from radical $-\mathrm{H}^{4}$-. Etymologists consider the -r of L. faber a suffix but have not considered the word cognate with L. fictor. Some, however, think (possibly rightly) L. faber a derivative of L. facio (which I have placed in entry 182), regarding (not rightly, I think) the -в- and the -c- as suffixes, which, moreover, they have not considered related.
G.-English "poet" (which is a loan-word from Gr.) means literally "maker"; and even English "maker" is sometimes used in the sense of poet though probably only through scholastic artificiality. It is remotely possible that G. file is, in relation of derivative to primary meaning, parallel to "poet" and therefore to be considered cognate with $\mathrm{H} . \mathrm{P}^{2} \mathrm{AH}^{4} \mathrm{AL}$.

$$

613a. H. . $\mathrm{P}^{2} \mathrm{AS}^{2} \mathrm{AH}^{4}$, to step, tread; $\mathrm{P}^{2} \mathrm{ES}^{2} \mathrm{AH}^{4}$, step, stride.

613b. Go. fotus, foot.
A.-S. fot, foot.
L. pes (genitive, pedis), foot.
S. $\mathrm{PAD}^{3}$, to go, step, tread;
foot; step.
Gr. pous (genitive, podos), foot; pezos, on foot.
G. вотиinn, boot.

613 n . This whole entry is made in query. In H., $\mathrm{z}^{2}$ and $\mathrm{s}^{2}$ are sometimes interchanged; as, H. . $\mathrm{z}^{2} \mathrm{ah}^{3} a q$, to laugh; and H. $s^{2} h^{3} a q$, to laugh. Etymologists regard these as parallel forms. If radical $-\mathrm{s}^{2}-$ in the present case stands for $\left[*-\mathrm{z}^{2}-\right]$, the Aryan words here cited might well be expected to have -T-, -D-, or the like. We should expect, however, some of the words to have -s- or -st-, though not necessarily.

[^89]There is also a H. word . $\mathrm{b}^{2} \mathrm{ws}$, to tread down, trample under foot; and in H., s and $z^{2}$ are sometimes interchanged, as shown in entry 542. Hence the Aryan words cited in the present entry might be referred to the root implied in H. . ${ }^{2}$ ws.
G.-The history of English boot is not clear. The -nn in G. вотиinn makes the latter word seem to me to be a native G. word. (See also entry 629).
(Root, $\mathrm{P}-\mathrm{S}^{2}-\mathrm{Q}$ ).
614a. H. . $P^{2} \mathrm{AS}^{2} \mathrm{AQ}$, to open 614b. G. FosGail, to unbar, wide. unbolt, open.
615.
(Root, $\mathrm{P}-\mathrm{T}^{2}-\mathrm{H}^{2}$ ).
615a. H. . $\mathrm{P}^{2} \mathrm{AT}^{2} \mathrm{AH}^{2}$, to persuade; to deceive, delude (with words); to entice, seduce; to let one's self be persuaded, deceived; to be simple, silly, foolish.

615n. L.-Etymologists have not considered L. fatuus cognate with Gr. peitho ${ }^{2}$. They consider the latter word cognate with L. fido, which I have placed in entry 89.
616.
(Root, $\mathrm{P}-\mathrm{T}^{2}-\mathrm{H}^{3}$ ).
616a. H. $P^{2}{A T^{2} A H^{3}}^{3}$, to open. 616b. L. pateo, to be open.

[^90]617.
617a. H. .z²ону, filthy (, of 617b. B. ahats (ats), nasty, garments); $\mathrm{z}^{2}$ онаh ${ }^{2}$, filth; excre- filthy, dirty, foul; stench. ment, dung.

617 n . Does the $-\mathrm{H}-\mathrm{in} \mathrm{B}. \mathrm{анats} \mathrm{represent} \mathrm{radical} \mathrm{-H} \mathrm{transposed?}$ (See section xiII.).
618.
(Root, $\left.\mathrm{z}^{2}-\mathrm{H}-\mathrm{N}\right)$.
618a. H. $z^{2}$ OHN, flock, sheep and goats.

618b. G. tan, flock of sheep; cattle, farm stock.
B. ahuntz, goat.

618n. B.-Evidently B. ahuntz is an instance of transposition. (See section xiri.).
619.
(Root, $\mathrm{z}^{2}-\mathrm{B}-\mathrm{H}$ ).
619a. H. . $z^{2}$ abah, to go forth to war; to make war, fight; conflict, fight. $\mathrm{z}^{2}$ АВАн, army; warfare.
620.
(Root, $\mathrm{z}^{2}-\mathrm{B}-\mathrm{H}^{2}$ ).
620a. H. $z^{2}(\mathrm{E}) \mathrm{By}$, splendor, 620b. B. ospe, renown, glory. glory, beauty.
621.
(Root, $\mathrm{z}^{2}-\mathrm{B}-\mathrm{H}^{4}$ ).
621a. A. ${ }^{*} \mathrm{Z}^{2}(\mathrm{E})$ BAH $^{4}$, to dip, dip 621b. G. stiob, to steep, soak. in, immerse; to moisten, wet.
H. $\mathrm{z}^{2}$ Ebar $^{4}$, dye; dyed stuff.
A.-S. steap, a drinking vessel, cup, stoup.

viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x .).
ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in $H ., h^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in G., $c, d, g, n, t$; in Go., $d$, $\mathbf{g}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{s}, \mathrm{t}$; in A.-S., $\mathrm{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{h}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{t}$; in L., $\mathrm{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{I}, \mathrm{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathbf{r}, \mathrm{s}, \mathrm{t}$; and in $\mathrm{B}_{.,} \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{tz},-\mathrm{tu}(-\mathrm{du})$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section xir.).
$x$. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value.
xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x.).
xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal" or "p2(e)h"al." Under - a. and under - b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

Dutch stippen, to dip; to steep.
B. Busti, to dip; to wet, soak, steep.
621 n . G.-Is G. stiob merely borrowed English steep? The history of the latter word is not full. I can scarcely doubt that the words are cognate with A. $\mathrm{z}^{2}(\mathrm{E}) \mathrm{BAH}^{4}$.
B.-Evidently B. вusti is an instance of transposition. (See section xili.).
(Root, $\left.\mathrm{z}^{2}-\mathrm{D}-\mathrm{D}\right)$.
622a. H. $z^{2}$ AD, side.
622b. Dutch zisDe, side.
623.
623a. H. $z^{2}$ edeq, right, fair- 623b. Go. astaths, certainty, ness, equity; the truth (, of what the truth. is spoken).

623 n . I enter here in query Go. astaths, the -th- of which may be merely a suffix and the word, therefore, hardly to be considered cognate with H. zedeq. For the possible loss of radical $-Q$, see section x .
624.
(Root, $\mathrm{z}^{2}-\mathrm{H}^{2}-\mathrm{L}$ ).
624a. H. . $\mathrm{Z}^{2} \mathrm{AH}^{2} \mathrm{AL}$, to shout, 624b. French étalon, stallion. cry aloud (for joy, sorrow, ter-
B. Chahal, calf. ror); to neigh (, as a horse).

624n. French.-The current derivations of French étalon are unsatisfactory. I think it very probable that the word is cognate with H.. $\mathrm{Z}^{2} \mathrm{AH}^{2} \mathrm{AL}$.

i. Roots tend to become monosyllabic in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.).
ii. Radical gutturals ( $h, h^{2}, h^{3}, h^{4}$ ) are regularly lost in G., and are often lost (especially $h$, $\mathbf{h}^{2}$ ) in the other Aryan languages and B. Radical $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}$ final are regularly quiescent in H. and unrepresented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section III.).
iii. Radical gutturals and palatals (h, $\left.\mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{h}^{3}, \mathbf{h}^{4} ; \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{k}, \mathbf{q}\right)$ may become, in Go., A.-S., and L., h, $k(c, q), g$; or, $h w(v), k(c, q) w(v),(?) g w(v) ;$ or, $w(v, b, f, p$, in L.). (See sections III. and IV.).
iv. Radical $\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{y}$, radical $\mathbf{n}$ initial, and radical $\mathbf{1}, \mathrm{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathbf{r}$ final are often lost in the Aryan languages and B. (See sections $\mathbf{v}$. and vir.).
$\mathbf{v}_{\text {. Radical liquids }(1, m, n, r}$ ) are regularly represented by $\mathbf{1 , m , n , r}$ (not always respectively) in the Aryan languages and $B$. (See section vir.).
vi. Radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}$ become d, $\mathbf{s d}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s t}, \mathrm{t}$, or $(\mathbf{z})$ in the Aryan languages. (See section virr.).
vii. In B., ch, tch, (cht), $s, t s,(s t), z, t z$, and (zt) are more or less freely interchanged and may each represent radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathrm{z}^{2}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s}^{2}, \mathbf{s}^{3}$.
B.-I place B. chahal here in query.
625.
(Root, $\mathrm{z}^{2}-\mathrm{v}-\mathrm{P}$ ).
625a. H. . $\mathrm{z}^{2}$ wP, to overflow;
625b. G. tabH, sea, ocean. . za $^{2}$ APah $^{2}$, inundation (Ezekiel 32:6) [(Gesenius)].

625 n . See also entry 752.
626.

626a. H. . $z^{2} w z^{2}$, to glitter, 626b. B. zuzi, torch, candle, shine, sparkle, gleam, be bright; taper, light. $\mathrm{z}^{2} \mathrm{Yz}^{2}$, anything shining.
627.
(Root, $\mathrm{z}^{2}-\mathrm{v}-\mathrm{R}$ ).
627 a . H. $\mathrm{z}^{2}$ Wr, rock, refuge; $m(e) z^{2} w r a h^{2}$, mound, fortress, citadel.

627b. G. TORR, rock, mound, tower, castle.
A.-S. TUR, tower; torr, a projecting rock; tower.
L. turris, tower.
628.
(Root, $\mathrm{z}^{2}-\mathrm{H}^{3}-\mathrm{H}^{2}$ ).
628a. H. . $z^{2} \mathrm{IH}^{3} \mathrm{EH}{ }^{2}$, dry, 628b. B. chuкнu, dry. parched.
629.
(Root, $\mathrm{Z}^{2}-\mathrm{H}^{3}-\mathrm{H}^{3}$ ).
629a. H. . $\mathrm{Z}^{2} \mathrm{AH}^{3} \mathrm{AH}^{3}$, to be 629b. G. тinne, tin [(The Cenbright: to be of a dazzling white; tury Dictionary)]. $\mathrm{Z}^{2} \mathrm{AH}^{3}$, dazzling white, bright.
A.-S. тin, $t$ in.

[^91]L. stannum, tin; stagno, to plate with "stannum"; stanneus (stagneus), made of "stannum."
629 n . G.-I do not find G. sinne in any of the G. dictionaries at hand. The -nne would seem to indicate (?) that the word is native G. (See also entry 613). Etymologists do not consider English tin cognate with L. stannum.
630.
(Root, $\mathrm{z}^{2}-\mathrm{H}^{3}-\mathrm{R}$ ).

630a. H. . $\mathrm{Z}^{2} \mathrm{AH}^{3} \mathrm{OR}$, white; $. \mathrm{Z}^{2} \mathrm{~A}-$ $\mathrm{H}^{3} \mathrm{AR}$, whiteness (of wool).

630b. B. zuri (churi), white.
B. chuhur, wise, discreet.
B. chahar, old.

630 n . I have entered B. chuhur and B. chahar here in query, on the probability (only slight) that the words have each derived a special meaning from the frequent association of wisdom, gray hair, and age.

Some lexicographers assign the meanings "tawny" and "red-dish-gray" to the H. words cited under 630a.
631.
(Root, $\mathrm{Z}^{2}-\mathrm{Y}-\mathrm{R}$ ).

631a. H. $\mathrm{z}^{2} \mathrm{Yr}$, a person sent on a journey, messenger, envoy. suers.

Anglo-Saxon (A.-S.), Latin (L.), Greek (Gr.), Sanskrit (S.), Basque (B.) viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section X.). ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in $H . h^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in G., $\mathbf{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{t}$; in Go., $\mathbf{d}$, $\mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; in A.-S., $\mathbf{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{h}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{t}$; in L., $\mathbf{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathbf{1}, \mathrm{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}, \mathbf{s}, \mathrm{t}$; and in B., $\mathrm{n}, \mathrm{tz},-\mathrm{tu}(-\mathrm{du})$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section xir.). $\mathbf{x}$. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value. xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x.). xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal" or "p ${ }^{2}(\mathrm{e}) \mathrm{h}$ "al." Under -a. and under -b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

635 n . A.-S.-On the loss of radical -d from the Aryan words here cited, see section x. Etymologists do not consider English tame and team cognate. I think the cognation will be evident to the reader after a careful study of the question with especial attention paid to the definitions. Note particularly that Gr. damazo ${ }^{2}$ means "to bring under the yoke."
G.-Radical -m- has probably been lost from G. TaOd. (See also entry 799).
636.
(Root, $\mathrm{z}^{2}-\mathrm{N}-\mathrm{m}$ ). .

636a. H. .zªnam, to dry up, harden, (only in the participle, passive,) dry, barren, withered ([said] of ears of grain, Genesis $41: 23)$; [(Gesenius cites)] A. $\mathrm{z}^{2}$ wnamah, stone.

636b. B. zimel, dry, wrinkled, shriveled.

Go. stairo, a barren woman.
L. sterilis, unfruitful, barren, sterile ([said] of plants and animals).

Gr. stereos, stiff, hard, firm; solid, cubic.

Go. stains, stone, rock.
A.-S. stan, stone, rock.

636n. Go.-Radical -N- has become -r- in Go. stairo, etc. Etymologists have not, of course, considered English sterile (a loan-word from L.) and stone cognate. Skeat, however, says: "A sterile soil is a hard, stony, unproductive one." The harmony in form between the words cited under 636a. and the harmony in definition between the words given under 636a, and those given under 636b. point distinctly to the cognation of English stone and sterile.

A.-S. stigan, to go; to ascend; to descend.
L. scando, to climb, ascend.
S. $\mathrm{s}^{2} \mathrm{KAn}^{5} \mathrm{D}^{3}$, to leap; to leap upon; to fall down.
637n. Go.-Etymologists have not, of course, considered Go. steigan, etc., cognate with L. scando, etc. I think that radical -d has been lost from Go. steigan, etc., (see section x.); and that the nasal in L. scando, etc., is intrusive. (See section vii.).

A. . $Z(\mathrm{E}) \mathrm{H}^{4} \mathrm{EYR}$, little, small.

638b. G. DER, little, small.
G. tair, low, mean, contemptible, base; contempt, reproach, disgrace.
В. снене (сне), little, small; [çненÉria, little ones (Genesis 34:29)]; cHori, sparrow.
B. achuri, lamb, kid.
B. chort, drop, a small quantity.
B. ezarian ezarian, little by little.

Note that H. nat'an (entry 491) means "to put, place, set; to give."

Etymologists, have not, of course, considered English give cognate with L. capio.
B.-Strangely, B. gibel means "the hinder part, back." Nevertheless, I think the word cognate with H. *qabal, etc. It may be pertinently observed that Ar. warahhu means both "in front of" and "behind."

Anglo-Saxon (A.-S.), Latin (L.), Greek (Gr.), Sanskrit (S.), Basque (B.) viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.). ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in $H_{\text {. }} \mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2} ;$ in $G ., \mathrm{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{t} ;$ in Go., d,  Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section xir.). x. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value. xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. #### Abstract

Anglo-Saxon (A.-S.), Latin (L.), Greek (Gr.), Sanskrit (S.), Basque (B.) viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and $B$. (See section X.). ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in $H_{1,} \mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in G., $\mathbf{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in Go., d, $\mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; in A.-S., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{h}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t} ;$ in $\mathrm{L} ., \mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{i}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t} ;$ and in $\mathrm{B}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t z},-\mathrm{tu}(-\mathrm{du})$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section xir.). x. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value. xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x .). xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H . and , A. words (Bib-, lical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal", or "p ${ }^{2}(e)$ h ${ }^{4}$ al." Under - a a and under -b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

662 n . A.-S.-It is probable that A.-S. wir (as also L. viriae) is a loan-word, as wire is an article of advanced civilization and one likely to be carried by traveling merchants. The name would be apt to go with the commodity.

Abstract

Anglo-Saxon (A.-S.), Latin (L.), Greek (Gr.), Sanskrit (S.), Basque (B.) viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.). ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in $H ., \mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathrm{t}^{2}$; in G., $\mathbf{c}, \mathrm{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{t}$; in Go., d, $\mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; in $A .-S, \mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{h}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in $\mathrm{L}, \mathrm{c}, \mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; and in $\mathrm{B}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t z},-\mathbf{t u ( - d u )}$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B . (See section XII.). x. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value. xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x.). xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H . and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal" or "pp2(e)h hal." Under - a. and under -b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

668b. G. GALL, foreigner, stranger.
G. gal, gale.
L. velox, swift, quick, fleet; volo, to fly.
L. vilis, cheap, of small value; worthless, base, vile.

668 n . G.-The history of English gale is obscure.
L.-Etymologists have not, of course, considered L. velox and L . volo cognate with L. vilis.

Abstract

Anglo-Saxon (A.-S.), Latin (L.), Greek (Gr.), Sanskrit (S.), Basque (B.) viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and $\mathrm{B}_{\text {. }}$ (See section x .). ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in $H ., h^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in G., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{t}$; in Go., d, $\mathbf{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; in A.-S., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{h}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in $L_{.,}, \mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{t}$; and in B., $\mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t z},-\mathbf{t u}(-\mathbf{d u})$. Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B . (See section XII.). x. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value. xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x.). xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal" or "p2(e)h 4al." Under - a. and under - b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [.].

(Root, R-P-H ${ }^{2}$ ).
712a. H. RAPAH ${ }^{2}$, to sink down; to hang down (listlessly, of the hands); to be relaxed, slackened; to be feeble, weak; to be slack, remiss, idle; to leave off (a work begun); to let go, dismiss (a person or thing); to let 712b. S. $\mathrm{R}^{3} \mathrm{Am}^{2} \mathrm{~B}$, to hang down; $\mathrm{L}^{3} \mathrm{Am}^{2} \mathrm{~B}$, to hang down, dangle.

A.-S. Lef, weak, infirm; lyFtadl, palsy.

Early English luft, left (hand).

^99 alone; to desert, forsake; RaPEH ${ }^{2}$, slack, weak, feeble, infirm; slack(-handed).
L. laeva, the left hand.
B. herabe, idleness, sloth, laziness, inactivity.

Go. bilaibjan, to leave behind; Laiba, that which is left, remnant.
A.-S. laefan, to leave, leave behind.
L. orbus, bereaved; destitute; orba, an orphan, widow.

Gr. orpнanos, orphan.

712 n . S.-Etymologists have not considered S. $\mathrm{R}^{3} \mathrm{Am}^{2} \mathbf{B}, \mathrm{~L}^{3} \mathrm{Am}^{2} \mathbf{B}$ (the $-\mathrm{m}^{2}$ - is intrusive) cognate with any of the other words in this entry.

English.-Etymologists do not consider English left (hand) cognate with English leave nor with L. laeva or L. orbus.
B.-Does the $\mathrm{H}-\mathrm{in}$ B. herabe represent radical $-\mathrm{H}^{2}$ transposed? (See section xiII.).

713.

(Root, $\mathrm{R}-\mathrm{Z}^{2}-\mathrm{H}^{2}$ ).

713a. H. $\mathrm{RaZ}^{2} \mathrm{AH}^{2}$, to delight in (any person or thing); to receive into favor; to receive graciously (one bringing a present).

714a. H. raq, thin, lean (, of kine).

729a. H. síAQ, sackcloth, sack.
729b. G. sac, bag, sack.
A.-S. sacc, bag, sack.
L. saccus, bag, sack.

729n. G.-Note that the -c in G. sac represents, exceptionally, radical -Q-Q. (See section Iv.).

Etymologists consider (wrongly, I think) G. sac, etc., to have been borrowed from H . and to have been widely diffused, probably through the wide-spread currency of the story of Joseph, in an incident of which (Genesis 44) "the cup was hidden in the sack of corn" (The Century Dictionary).

733 n . G.-I conjecture, on the evidence of G. dearg and without confirmatory evidence in the Semitic languages, that radical $s^{2}$ - stands for earlier [ $\left.{ }^{*} z^{2}-\right]$. In H., $s^{2}$ is sometimes interchanged with $\mathrm{z}^{2}$. (See note in entry 613).
B.-Evidently B. gorratz is an instance of transposition. (See section xiII.).

Abstract

Hebrew (H.), Aramaic (A.), Arabic (Ar.), Gaelic (G.), Gothic (Go.) i. Roots tend to become monosyllabic in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.). ii. Radical gutturals ( $h, h^{2}, h^{3}, h^{4}$ ) are regularly lost in G., and are often lost (especially $\mathbf{h}$, $\mathbf{h}^{2}$ ) in the other Aryan languages and B. Radical $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}$ final are regularly quiescent in H. and unrepresented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section iri.). iii. Radical gutturals and palatals (h, $\mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{h}^{3}, \mathbf{h}^{4} ; \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{k}, \mathbf{q}$ ) may become, in Go., A.-S., and L., h, $\mathbf{k}(\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{q}), \mathrm{g}$; or, $\mathrm{hw}(\mathbf{v}), \mathbf{k}(\mathrm{c}, \mathrm{q}) \mathbf{w}(\mathbf{v})$, (?) $\mathrm{gw}(\mathbf{v})$; or, $\mathbf{w}(\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{b}, \mathrm{f}, \mathrm{p}$, in L.). (See sections III. and IV.). iv. Radical $\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{y}$, radical $\mathbf{n}$ initial, and radical $1, m, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ final are often lost in the Aryan languages and $\mathrm{B}_{\text {. }}$ (See sections $\mathrm{v}_{\mathrm{r}}$ and VII.). $\mathbf{v}_{0}$ Radical liquids ( $\mathbf{1}, \mathrm{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathbf{r}$ ) are regularly represented by $\mathbf{1 , m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ (not always respectively) in the Aryan languages and B. (See section viI.). vi. Radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}$ become $\mathbf{d}, \mathbf{s d}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s t}, \mathbf{t}$, or $(\mathbf{z})$ in the Aryan languages. (See section viri.). vii. In B., ch, tch, (cht), $s, t s$, ( $\mathbf{s t}$ ), $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{t z}$, and ( $\mathbf{z t}$ ) are more or less freely interchanged and may each represent radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s}^{2}, \mathbf{s}^{3}$.

A. . $S^{3}(E) \operatorname{PAR}(e) P^{2} A R$, dawn, aurora.

779n. H.-The definition, 'to garnish (with stars and constellations)," expresses the view of most interpreters (says Gesenius) regarding H. $\mathrm{s}^{3} \mathrm{IP}(\mathrm{E})$ Rah $^{2}$ (Job 26:13), by Gesenius and others rendered "beauty, brightness (, of the heavens)."
L.-The ve- in L. vesper and the he- in Gr. hesperos are evidently prefixes. (See also entries 419, 715, 780). For the origin of English "west," which etymologists connect with these words, see entry 29.

780a. H. ${ }^{*} \mathrm{~s}^{3} \mathrm{AQAH}^{2}$, to give to drink: to water; to refresh; s $^{3}$ IQQwy, drink, (especially, wine); refreshment.

780 n . The ui- in G. uisge is evidently a prefix. (See also entries $419,715,779$ ). It is interesting to observe that "whiskey"

[^107](the word is supposed to have been borrowed from G.) was, in a slightly different form, the name of a refreshing (?) drink apparently before the G. peoples began their first migration.

iv. Radical $\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{y}$, radical $\mathbf{n}$ initial, and radical $\mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ final are often lost in the Aryan languages and $\mathrm{B}_{\text {. }}$ (See sections v . and vir.).
$\mathbf{v}$. Radical liquids ( $\mathbf{1}, \mathrm{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathrm{r}$ ) are regularly represented by $\mathbf{l}, \mathrm{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathbf{r}$ (not always respectively) in the Aryan languages and B. (See section vir.).
vi. Radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}$ become d, sd, $\mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s t}, \mathrm{t}$, or ( $\mathbf{z}$ ) in the Aryan languages. (See section viir.).
vii. In B., ch, tch, (cht), s, ts, (st), $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{t z}$, and (zt) are more or less freely interchanged and may each represent radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s}^{2}, \mathbf{s}^{3}$.
791.
(Root, $\mathrm{s}^{3}-\mathrm{v}$ ?-s $\mathrm{s}^{3}$ ).
791a. H. $\mathrm{s}^{3} \mathrm{Es}^{3}$, white marble, alabaster.

791b. Go. swistar, sister.
A.-S. sweostor, sister.
L. soror (for *sosor), sister.
S. $s^{2} v a s^{2} r$, sister.
G. soisich, to flash, gleam.

791n. Go.-On the mode of designating girls among our remote ancestors, see entry 194. On the suffix of the Aryan words here cited (except the G. word), see entries $1,12,43,194,219$.
G.-I place G. sorsich here in query.
792.
(Root, $\mathrm{s}^{3}-\mathrm{T}^{2}-\mathrm{Q}$ ).

792a. H. . $\mathrm{s}^{3} \mathrm{AT}^{2} \mathrm{AQ}$, to subside, settle down; to be still, at rest (, of the waves).

792b. L. stagnum, a piece of standing water; pool, pond, swamp, fen; stagno, to form a pool of standing water; to stagnate, be stagnant.
793.
(Root, $\mathrm{T}^{2}-\mathrm{H}-\mathrm{M}$ ).

793a. H. .T³ham, to be double, twain; to bear twins; . $\mathrm{T}^{3} \mathrm{OU}-$ ham, twin.

793b. G. Da, two; тri, three; ceitнir, four; seachd, seven; ochi, eight; DeICH, ten.

Go. twai, two; tweihnai, two apiece; тнreis, three; fiDwor, four; sibun, seven; ahtau, eight; taifun, ten.

viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.).
ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in $H_{\text {. }} \mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2} ;$ in $G ., \mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t} ;$ in Go., d,
 Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section xii.).
$\mathbf{x}$. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value.
xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italies if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x.).
xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and", A. words (Bib-, lical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal" or "p ${ }^{2}(\mathrm{e})$ h ${ }^{4}$ al." Under - a. and under -b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].
A.-S. twegen, two, twain; THri, three; feower, four; seofon, seven; eahta, eight; ten, ten; geTWIN, a twin.
L. Duo, two; tres, three; quaтuor, four; septem, seven; осто, eight; decem, ten.
S. $\mathrm{D}^{3} \mathrm{va}$, two; $\mathrm{T}^{3} \mathrm{r}^{3} \mathrm{i}$, three; ca$\mathrm{T}^{3} \mathrm{Ur}^{3}$, four; $\mathrm{s}^{2}$ apt $^{3} \mathrm{AN}^{5}$, seven $n$; as$\mathrm{TAN}^{5}$, eight; $\mathrm{D}^{3} \mathrm{AC}^{3} \mathrm{AN}^{5}$, ten.
793 n . On the formation of numeral words in the Aryan languages, see section xvir.
G.-Etymologists have not considered English two and ten cognate. The literal meaning of English ten, etc., is (as I see it) "two (hands)." (See also entry 445 and section xvir.). .
794.

794a. H. т ${ }^{3}$ еван $^{2}$, box, chest, 794b. Dutch товве, tub. coffer.

794n. Etymologists consider H. т ${ }^{3}$ еван $^{2}$ to be probably a loanword from Egyptian.
795.
(Root, $\mathrm{T}^{2}-\mathrm{V}-\mathrm{R}$ ).
795a. H. $\mathrm{T}^{3} W \mathrm{R}$, to go about, 795 b . B. етно́ri, to come, travel about (as a merchant). arrive.
796.
(Root, $\mathrm{T}^{2}-\mathrm{K}-\mathrm{N}$ ).
796a. H. . Tªkan, to measure, weigh; to reckon; to examine, 796b. Go. тaikn, proof, token; taikns, sign, miracle.

Hebrew (H.), Aramaic (A.), Arabic (Ar.), Gaelic (G.), Gothic (Go.)
i. Roots tend to become monosyllabic in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.).
ii. Radical gutturals ( $h, h^{2}, h^{3}, h^{4}$ ) are regularly lost in $G$., and are often lost (especially $h$. $h^{2}$ ) in the other Aryan languages and $B$. Radical $h, h^{2}$ final are regularly quiescent in $H$. and unrepresented in the Aryan languages and B . (See section iiI.).
iii. Radical gutturals and palatals ( $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{h}^{3}, \mathbf{h}^{4} ; \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{k}, \mathbf{q}$ ) may become, in Go., A.-S., and $\mathbf{L}, \mathbf{h}, \mathbf{k}(\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{q}), \mathbf{g} ;$ or, $\mathbf{h w}(\mathbf{v}), \mathbf{k}(\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{q}) \mathbf{w}(\mathbf{v})$, (?) $\mathbf{g w}(\mathbf{v}) ;$ or, $\mathbf{w}(\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{b}, \mathbf{f}, \mathbf{p}$, in L.). (See sections III. and IV.).
iv. Radical $\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{y}$, radical $\mathbf{n}$ initial, and radical $\mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ final are often lost in the Aryan languages and B. '(See sections V . and viI.).
${ }^{\mathbf{v}}$. Radical liquids ( $\mathbf{1}, \mathrm{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathbf{r}$ ) are regularly represented by $\mathbf{1 , m} \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{r}$ (not always respectively) in the Aryan languages and B. (See section vii.).
vi. Radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}$ become $\mathbf{d}$, sd, $\mathbf{s}$, $\mathbf{s t}, \mathbf{t}$, or $(\mathbf{z})$ in the Aryan languages. (See section viri.).

try, prove; $\mathrm{T}^{3}$ OKEN, a fixed quantity, measure, standard.
A.-S. tacn, sign, distinguishing mark, credential, token; proof, evidence; tacnian, to make a mark upon (something): to mark.

796n. Etymologists consider Go. taikn, etc., cognate with Go. gateihan, etc., which I have placed in entry 315.
797.
(Root, $\mathrm{T}^{2}-\mathrm{M}-\mathrm{H}^{2}$ ).
797 a. H. . $\mathrm{T}^{3} \mathrm{AMA}-\mathrm{H}^{2}$, to won-797 b . Gr. thaumazo ${ }^{2}$, to wonder; to be astonished. der, marvel; to be astonished.
A. . $\mathrm{T}^{3}\left(\right.$ E $^{\left(\mathrm{MA}-\mathrm{H}^{2} \text {, wonder, mir- }\right.}$ acle.

797 n . H.-Radical $-\mathrm{H}^{2}$ is not quiescent in H. . $\mathrm{T}^{3} \mathrm{Ama}-\mathrm{H}^{2}$, etc., and possibly also enters into the formation of -z-in Gr. thaumazo ${ }^{2}$.
798.
(Root, m-v-n).

798a. H. t3 ${ }^{3}$ (e) mwnah ${ }^{2}$, image, likeness, resemblance.

798b. Go. mena, the moon; menoths, month.
A.-S. mona, the moon; moNath, month.
G. mios, month.
L. mensis, month.
S. $m^{2} a^{2} S^{2} a$, the moon; month.

Gr. $\mathrm{ME}^{2} \mathrm{Ne}^{2}$, the moon; $\mathrm{ME}^{2} \mathbf{N}$, month.
798n. G.-Is the -s in G. mios a suffix? (See also entry 803).

viii. When the medial and the final consonant of a root are the same or similar in character, only one of them is represented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.).
ix. Suffixes frequently occurring are: in H., $\mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{y}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}^{2}$; in G., $\mathbf{c}, \mathbf{d}, \mathrm{g}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{t}$; in Go., d,
 Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B. (See section xir.).
$x$. In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value.
xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x.).
xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and A. words (Biblical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal" or "p2(e)h ${ }^{4}$ al." Under - a. and under - b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].
799a. Н. .T${ }^{3}$ алак (e), to hold 799b. G. тaic, prop, support. up, support.

799n. Radical -m- has probably been lost from G. taic. (See also entry 635).

800a. H. . т $^{3}$ амам, to cease, come to an end; $\mathrm{T}^{3} \mathbf{0}$, completeness, peace, security.

800 n . I am unable to decide whether G. тamh belongs here or in entry 162.
801.
(Root, $\mathrm{T}^{2}-\mathrm{M}-\mathrm{R}$ ).
801a. H. tamar, palm-tree; $\mathrm{T}^{3}$ OMER, palm-tree, post; . $\mathrm{T}^{3} \mathrm{Y}-$ marah ${ }^{2}$, column, pillar.

801b. A.-S. timber, timber, timbran, to build.

Go. timrjan,to build; timrja, carpenter.
L. domus, house, home.
S. $\mathrm{D}^{3} \mathrm{AM}^{2} \mathrm{a}$, house, home.

Gr. demo ${ }^{2}$, to build; domos, house, temple.

801n. A.-S.-Etymologists consider (rightly, of course) the -bin A.-S. timbran, etc., intrusive.
L.-Radical -R has evidently been lost from L. Domus, etc. (See section vir.). Etymologists consider (evidently wrongly) the -r- in Go. timrjan, etc., as a suffix; and connect (rightly, I think) the words with L. Domus, etc.

Hebrew (H.), Aramaic (A.), Arabic (Ar.), Gaelic (G.), Gothic (Go.)

i. Roots tend to become monosyllabic in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.).
ii. Radical gutturals ( $h, h^{2}, h^{3}, h^{4}$ ) are regularly lost in G., and are often lost (especially $h$, $\mathbf{h}^{2}$ ) in the other Aryan languages and B. Radical h, $\mathbf{h}^{2}$ final are regularly quiescent in H. and unrepresented in the Aryan languages and B. (See section iri.).
iii. Radical gutturals and palatals ( $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{h}^{3}, \mathbf{h}^{4} ; \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{k}, \mathbf{q}$ ) may become, in Go., A.-S., and L., h, $k(c, q), g$; or, $h w(v), k(c, q) w(v)$, (?) $g w(v)$; or, $w(v, b, f, p$, in L.). (See sections III. and Iv.).
iv. Radical $\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{y}$, radical $\mathbf{n}$ initial, and radical $\mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ final are often lost in the Aryan languages and B. (See sections v. and vir.).
$\mathbf{v}$. Radical liquids ( $\mathbf{1}, \mathbf{m}, \mathrm{n}, \mathbf{r}$ ) are regularly represented by $\mathbf{1 , m} \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{r}$ (not always respectively) in the Aryan languages and B. (See section vir.).
vi. Radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}$ become $d, s d, s, s t, t$, or $(z)$ in the Aryan languages. (See section viri.).
vii. In B., ch, tch, (cht), $s, t s,(s t), z, t z$, and (zt) are more or less freely interchanged and may each represent radical $z, z^{2}, s, s^{2}, s^{3}$.
802.
(Root, $\mathrm{T}^{2}-\mathrm{V}-\mathrm{R}$ ).
802a. H. tior (Tºur), turtle- 802b. A.-S. turtle (turtla), dove. turtle-dove.
L. turtur, turtle-dove.

802n. A.-S.-Etymologists consider (possibly rightly) A.-S. turtle an instance of complete reduplication and the -l- the successor of $*_{-R}$, inferred from the first member of the compound and from the -r in L. turtur. I prefer to think the word an instance of partial reduplication and the -l- a suffix. (See also entry 661 and section xiv.).
803.
(Root, $\mathrm{T}^{2}-\mathrm{R}-\mathrm{H}^{4}$ ).
803a. A. T ${ }^{3}(\mathrm{E}) \mathrm{RAH}^{4}$, gate, door. 803b. G. Dorus, gate, wicket; door.

Go. Daur, gate, door.
A.-S. duru (dor), door, gate.
S. $\mathrm{D}^{3} \mathrm{VA}^{2} \mathrm{R}^{3}$, door, gate.

Gr. thura, door.
803 n . A.-The usual H. word for door is $\mathrm{d}^{2}$ elet $^{2}$; but etymologists consider A. $\mathrm{T}^{3}(\mathrm{E}) \mathrm{RAH}^{4}$, gate, door, a variant of H. s ${ }^{3} \mathrm{ah}^{4}$ ar, gate. If rightly, the A . word has $\mathrm{T}^{3}$ - (not unexpectedly) for H . $s^{3}$ - and has - RaH $^{4}$ by transposition. (See section xiri.). The Aryan words, however, cited under 803b., would seem to indicate that $A . T^{3}(E) R_{A} H^{4}$ is approximately an original form; though, as radical $-\mathrm{H}^{4}$ is not represented in the Aryan words, the question of transposition remains unsettled.
G.-Is the -s in G. dorus a suffix? (See also entry 798).

AN INTERESTING LETTER

(Reprinted verbatim, literatim, et punctuatim from The Gentleman's Magazine, 1784, volume 54, page 788; in Columbia University Library $\dagger$ ).
"Rev. Donald M‘Kinnon, D. D. in a letter to a friend at Aberdeen, Feb. 1784. I am now on a tour through the upper parts of Indostan, at Etawa, on the banks of the Sumna, in my way to Agra and Delhi; I learn the history and antiquities of the country, and see its present state much better from this peregrination, than I could do from reading, My professed design is, to make a catalogue of all the manuscripts in Indostan, Shanscritt, Arabic, and Persic, and to get, as far as I am capable, a view of the state and progress of the sciences here: Unfortunately, the state of the countries beyond the Company's influence is not favourable to my undertaking. I hear of nothing before me but robberies and assassinations; our Ambassador at Delhi absolutely dissuades me from proceeding, but I am not willing to recede so soon. Whatever becomes of me, there is no knowledge in Asia, which Europe will not see very soon. Judge Jones [Sir William Jones] has founded a society, which I had begun to establish before his arrival, viz. an Oriental society, for the cultivation and investigation of Oriental learning. Col. Maritine, now at Lucklow, has, at an immense pains and expense, got a Shanscritt dictionary and grammar arranged in the European manner, with Persian and vulgar Moors translations; you will soon be able to judge whether the Brahmins, like the modern Arabs and Persians, have drawn their knowledge of science from the Greeks, or whether their systems are more ancient and original than that of Greece."

POSTSCRIPT

The foregoing Expositions detail the findings of an investigation which I began early in the year 1906 and have since prosecuted with little interruption. $\dagger$ The work has been seven months in printing. The only assistance I have had has been that of amanuenses, among whom I am pleased to name Miss Margaret Frances Head, Miss Frances Irene Kirk, Miss Lora Bedell Pierson, and Mr. Frank Raymond Gamby. Mr. Gamby's services have been critical as well as clerical. Besides constructing the index, he has rendered me valued assistance, particularly in verifying the forms and definitions of the Gaelic, the Gothic, and the Anglo-Saxon words cited and generally in preventing intrusion of typographical errors into the work.§

Hitherto, attempts to demonstrate fundamental kinship of the Aryan with the Semitic tongues have been many but have served only to cause scholars to suspect those two linguistic families to be wholly unrelated (see the Statement, pages 1-4). Consequently, I am prepared to see this work prejudged adversely by many fairminded critics. I am, however, persuaded that the evidences of kinship which are herein contained are of such telling character and are so numerous that pertinent and rational skepticism will not long survive a careful examination of them. (For a cursory survey of those evidences, it might be well for the reader to begin with entries $519,564,243,244,250,254,280,286,29,226 ; 356,352$, $360,370,350 ; 680,647,659,660,669,676,653 ; 190,195,200,202$, 203, 213, 24; 627, 629, 636, 641, 270; 79, 81, 88, 90, 114; 578, 584, $591,596,608,609,610,611 ; 152,153,156,165,167 ; 296,297,298$, 302 ; 793, 796, 798, 801 ; 313, 315, 322, 324, 325, 332, 333, 334, 335; 401, 403, 406, 407, 409, 412, 414, 436; 474, 476, 479, 486, 487, 490,

Semitic philology (and Biblical exegesis) will benefit greatly from this reclamation of linguistic kinships long forgotten; but Aryan philology will benefit far more. Indeed, henceforth the student of the latter must turn for primary inspiration to Hebrew and the Bible. $\dagger$ Next to claim his attention should be Gaelic and Anglo-Saxon (and Gothic). These languages, it will be evident to readers of this volume, have changed least of the Aryan tongues since separating from ancestral Semitic; and, like tombs that have been sealed for ages, contain treasures for the student of prehistoric civilization and of racial migrations as well as for the student of philology. Before that separation took place, civilization had made, it would seem, important advances. There will be found in this volume data leading to the inferences that some useful animals had been domesticated (entries 102, 106, 369, 584, 635); that various useful implements and arts had been invented (entries $275,374,397,423,482,519,726 ; 108,153,226,235,244$, 464, 596; 63, 356, 469, 516, 561, 598, 715, 731; 157, 286; 216, 356; $591 ; 662$ ); and that social, political, and religious organization had been effected (entries 1, 43, 121, 216, 291, 460; 19, 114, $158,604,609,610,781,796 ; 22,115,195,202,229,234,243,345$, $437,440,653,676$ ). The reader should beware of making hasty assumptions in these matters and should keep well in mind that cognate words often develop parallel meanings independently; that, when any strange thing is borrowed, its name also is apt to be borrowed; and lastly, that words wholly unrelated have sometimes been thought to be cognate.

A few of the words, the derivations of which, as herein traced out, may be of especial interest to the general reader, are these (the number of the proper entry of each word follows within marks of parenthesis): ambassador (604), beast (88), berry (81), Britain (86), butter (584), buy (79), cloth (356), dive (297), dough (153), drive (165), east (327), felly (596), ghost (659), God (653), gold (669), gospel (510), guess (676), hear (24), hell (540), Hibernia (29), hug (239), human (656), hundred (26), keel (356), lad (322), [^110]leaf (383), light (380), loaf (244), London (384), lot (460), love (41), man (324), melt (412), milk (414), mind (46), moon (798), naked (445), nest (474), nose (487), other (339), pitcher (591), plough (596), polecat (581), root (280), rug (715), sacred (195), shin (753), shower (507), silly (763), sin (202), sleep (763), sore (644), soul (727), sparrow (641), speech (728), star (190), steal (476), stench (203), stepson (187), stone (636), storm (213), stream (213), suck (488), summer (200), teach (315), team (635), tear (298), tease (463), thirst (167), timber (801), time (199), tin (629), token (796), towel (156), vice (234), vile (668), wafer (226), waist (270), wake (243), war (683), warm (254), warp (561), wary (564), wasp (287), water (406), wear (360), weave (516), west (29), wheat (235), wheel (519), whelm (540), whelp (352), whet (222), whiskey (780), wile (467), wire (662), wish (289), witch (243), wolf (352), word (680), work (715), worm (564), write (286), year (332), yesterday (29), young (325).

In view of the signal importance which Gaelic has been found throughout this investigation to possess for fundamental philology, doubtless it will henceforth be proper to commend rather than disparage the zeal of the Gael (both Hibernian and Highland, past and present) for the preservation of his vanishing mother-tongue. I may mention in exemplification of such zeal the fact that 67 subscriptions for Robert Archibald Armstrong's Gaelic Dictionary (quarto, 1825) were taken, in advance of its publication, in the little West Indian islands, St. Vincent (41) and Grenada (26).

In bringing this work to a close, I wish to acknowledge a debt of gratitude to my Sabbath-school teacher of former days, Mrs. Phobe Anne Stone-Holly, and to my Sabbath-school classmate and comrade in youth, Mr. Alfred Eugene Fowler. By the practical use they made of their knowledge of Latin, they kept me, happily, from accepting without question the prevalent opinion that the study of material science (even as currently described) is not greatly facilitated by some serious and intelligent sturly of certain foreign languages, notably Latin and Greek.

Denver,

THE [TRIPLE] AUTHORSHIP OF THE WEST SAXON GOSPELS [A DISCOVERY]. By Allison Emery Drake, A. M., Ph. D., University Fellow in Anglo-Saxon in Columbia College. Paper, 8vo, 45 pages, $$ 1.00$. New York, 1894.

Eugen Einenkel in "Anglia; Beiblatt" (September 1894): "Der verf. der vorliegenden abhandlung beschäftigt sich mit der frage, ob die wests. bibelïbersetzung von einem oder mehreren verfassern herrührt. Ausgehend von dem verhalten Aelfreds, Aelfrics etc. dem gebrauche von gewissen synonymen und doppelformen gegenüber, wendet der verf. dieses kriterium auf die wests. bibelïbersetzung an und findet, dass der Matthäus von den iibrigen evangelien sich scheidet durch den seltenen gebrauch 1) der schwachen form von heofon, 2) des verbums underfon (als synonym von onfon), 3) des von thaet eingeleiteten wolde als ausdruck der absicht in der vergangen heit und 4) durch den fast ausschliesslichen gebrauch der formen thaera, thaer, hwaer statt thara, thar, hwar; dass Matthïus von Marcus und Lucas im besondern sich scheidet durch den gebrauch von hundredes ealdor statt hundredman (centurio!) und wiederum im besonderen von Lucas durch den gebrauch von ligyt und gristbitung statt des letzteren ligraesc und grystlung. Johannes ferner nimmt eine sonderstellung den übrigen evangelien dadurch ein, dass es den plural von heofon gebraucht, wo wir den singular erwarten sollten, dass es fast ausschliesslich underfon verwendet, dass es von dem von thaet eingefiihrten wolde (s. o.) den ausgiebigsten gebrauch macht, und dass es die formen thara, thaera, thar, thaer, hwar, hwaer völlig unterschiedslos gebraucht. Und schliesslich stellen sich Matthäus und Johannes gegenïber Markus und Lucas, indem erstere beiden 1) lat. 'autem' häufig durch witodlice wiedergeben, 2) cocc gebrauchen, wo letztere beiden hana setzen, 3) die präp. (on-) uppan bei weitem dem von den anderen beliebten ofer (on) vorziehen, 4) das lat. 'vox clamantis' korrekt iibersetzen und 5) das verb. belaewan (st. gesyllan) überall dort verwenden, wo lat. 'trado' im sinne von 'verraten' gebraucht ist.
"Der verf. findet demgemaiss, dass Markus und Lucas von einem anderen übersetzer herrïhrt als Johannes und dieser (vielleicht) von wieder einem anderen als Matthaius. Der dialekt der letzteren beiden ist beinahe derselbe. Weit abseits stehen und nach norden weisen Markus und Lucas, deren wortschatz und synonymik nicht wenig an die nordhumbr. tibersetzung erinnert.
"Der verf. weiss sein kriterium mit umsicht und fleiss zu verwenden, und es ist ihm zweifellos gelungen zu beweisen, dass die westsiachs. evangelien von mehr als einem uibersetzer verfasst sind."
O. Brenner in "Englische Studien" (XX.): "Auf sehr praktische weise zeigt Drake, dass in einer anzahl von eigenthümlichkeiten, bei denen der zufall ausgeschlossen ist, die ubersetzung des Matthäus und Johannes parallel gehen, Marcus und Lucas sich gemeinschaftlich von beiden unterscheiden, so im gebrauch und der declination von heofon (schwach nur bei Matth.), underfon und onfon (ersteres nie bei Marc. Luc.), umschreibung des finalen conjunctives durch willan (nie bei Marc. Luc., vereinzelt bei Matth., häufg im Joh.), thaera und thara (ersteres vorherrschend bei Matth., letzteres fast ausschliesslich bei Marc. Luc., gemischt bei Joh.), witodlice=autem (nur je einmal bei Marc. Luc., regel bei Matth. und Joh.), hana und cocc (ersteres bei Marc. Luc., letzteres bei den andern beiden), u. s. w.-A.usdrïcklich versichert Drake zum schluss, dass erscheinungen, die irgendwie zu einer anderen gruppirung zwingen, den von ihm aufgefiihrten nicht entgegenstehen. Das resultat scheint so weit gesichert: Marcus und Lucas sind vom gleichen übersetzer, Matth. und Joh. wenigstens am gleichen orte geschrieben, wenn auch nicht vom gleichen iibersetzer, jedenfalls an einem anderen orte und von einem anderen übersetzer als die ersten beiden. Einige, nicht zuïallige verwandschaft besteht dagegen zwischen Marc. Luc. einerseits und der northumbr. ubersetzung andererseits. Sehr beachtenswerth sind Drake's ausführungen iiber den zufall bei übereinstimmungen verschiedener hss. und verwandte fragen (s. 18 ff.). Ausser den evangelisten sind auch Aelfred und Aelfric beriicksichtigt."

[^0]:    $\dagger$ Among obstacles to discovery of the truth for which many philologists were eagerly searching were, in my opinion, the very principles and tests determined and adopted in those days (and for the most part still in good repute) for guidance in philological investigation. Those principles were, as I view them, too provincial, the tests too delicate, for service in the general investigation of a question, such as that of possible kinship between the Semitic and the Aryan tongues, involving such vast lapses of reckoned and unreckoned time, such lengths of geographical limits wherein remain so many traces of countless wars, conquests, and subjugations, minglings and interminglings, crossings and intercrossings of so many numerous peoples.

    The Semitic languages as recently classified (see Gesenius' Hebrew Grammar, Oxford, 1898, pages 1-3) comprise four groups: I. The South Semitic (Arabic, Ethiopic or Ge`ez, etc.); II. The Middle Semitic (Hebrew, Phenician, etc.); ini. The North Semitic (Eastern Aramaic or Syriac; Western Aramaic or, obsoletely, Chaldee; etc.); iv. The East Semitic (AssyrioBabylonian).
    "...the Indo-European or Aryan family...embraces seven groups of tongues [now ten or more, the grouping as also the naming being somewhat unstable] known as the Indian or Sanskrit, the Persian or Zend, the Greek, the Italian, the Celtic, the Slavonic, and the Teutonic or Germanic.... All these languages have one common system of inflection, and in various respects strikingly resemble each other. They are the descendants of one common speech spoken by a single race of men untold centuries before the dawn of history" (A Latin Grammar, by Albert Harkness, page 374).

[^1]:    $\dagger$ Some readers will here recall the reply of Thamus to Theuth in the Platonic myth (in the Phaedrus, 274-5), which I render as follows: "When Thamus was king of all Upper Egypt,... there came to him Theuth, the inventor of letters,... and said: 'This art, O King, will make the Egyptians wiser and improve their memories; for it has been found to be a recipe both for memory and for wisdom.' 'Most ingenious Theuth,' replied Thamus, 'one man can invent arts, but [only] another can judge whether they are to be baneful or beneficial to the user. Now you are the father of letters and, from predisposition, say the opposite of what you should; for this art will put forgetfulness in the souls of the learners through disuse of the memory inasmuch as they will trust to external records, nudges from others, and will not of themselves keep their memories alert from within. Wherefore, you have found a recipe, not for memory, but for prompting. You give your disciples the semblance of wisdom but not the reality; and they, having become great but undisciplined readers, will seem wonderfully wise, but will be, for the most part, lacking in judgment and tiresome to be with because of their learned pretensions.""
    ${ }^{3}$ The Basque people inhabit the land lying round (and back from) the angle of the Bay of Biscay, partly in France and partly in Spain. The number of them is upwards of half a million. In general, I have found the vocabulary of the so-called French Basques in much the better state of preservation.

[^2]:    $\dagger$ Manx is really a Gaelic dialect; but a new system of spelling Manx words replaced the old system in the eighteenth century and the dialect thereby became in appearance a strange tongue. Unfortunately for philology, the new system of spelling was introduced before the Bible was translated into Manx (1771-5) and before a comprehensive Manx dictionary had been constructed. If the new system of spelling had been intelligently devised, and had been accurately applied to the language (an achievement scarcely to be even hoped for in so great and so delicately complicated a matter), the loss to philology would still have been great; for, whereas a new system of spelling aims to represent only that which is, a long-established system actually (though not always most briefly) represents what is and also points to what has been.

    The Gaelic of northern Scotland and adjacent islands differs but little from that of Ireland. The scantiness of this variation is remarkable in view of the length of time Gaelic is known to have been spoken in Scotland; and in view of the improbability of any considerable communication, during that time, between the people of Scotland and those of Ireland. Remarkable indeed is this scantiness of variation if Scotland, as is thought by some, was inhabited by a non-Gaelic people when, near the middle of the sixth century of our era, Columba and his disciples established themselves in Iona.

[^3]:    $\dagger$ Modern scholarship (see Gesenius' Hebrew Grammar, section 75), viewing in particular Arabic and Ethiopic.forms, regards quiescent -h2 of so-called Hebrew roots as standing, sometimes for earlier ${ }^{}$-v, oftener for earlier ${ }^{}-\mathrm{y}$. If rightly, here is an important indication of closer kinship of the Aryan languages with Hebrew than with South Semitic; for, I find, radical v final is represented in the Aryan languages only when it is persistent in Hebrew. (See entry 763). Does the inference necessarily follow that the division between Hebrew and South Semitic had become established before the Aryan peoples began their first migrations? (See also entries 77, 235, 335). On the other hand, what of the prefix $m$, which is found in most if not all of the Semitic languages but not (?) in the Aryan languages? (See section vir.).
    ${ }_{\text {Z }}$ The asterisk (*), here as elsewhere, indicates that the form before which it is placed is conjectural; and the brackets [ ] indicate that the conjecture is, in my opinion, confined to the present volume. The egotism thus partly concealed in brackets as well as that so often unconcealed throughout the volume should not be ascribed wholly to self-conceit. It has seemed to me that some readers of a volume like this must wish to be here and there informed whether the author is dispensing current philology or merely his own opinions.

[^4]:    $\dagger$ Also classed as palatals are y and r , which, however, I have treated in sections $v$. and vir. respectively.

[^5]:    $\dagger$ Also classed as linguals are 1 and ${ }^{\circ} n$, which are to be found in the following section (vir.).

[^6]:    $\dagger$ The Semitic word for 6 and that for 7 are very much like the corresponding Aryan words, as etymologists have often remarked.

[^7]:    $\dagger \mathrm{I}$ conjecture that conjunctions are as a class a comparatively recent addition to the "parts of speech."

[^8]:    $\dagger \mathrm{I}$ do not regard primitive interjections as real words and have not dealt with them at all in the present volume. I take them to be instinctive in origin, like the crowing of the cock or the neighing of the horse, and therefore without much (if any) philological value except from syntactic position.

[^9]:    $\dagger$ In certain phases of inflection, the Scythian verb, like the Semitic and the Aryan verb, suffixes the pronominal subject. This suggests the probability that even the Scythian subject nominative once regularly followed the verb; also the possibility of fundamental kinship of the Scythian with the Semitic and the Aryan tongues. Further, there are pronominal forms in Scythian (notably Hungarian) that seem unmistakably to be related to corresponding Semitic and Aryan (notably Teutonic) forms.

    BSome etymologists think English "is" has lost an originally suffixed $t$. I think the word never took on the suffix. Nouns are frequently used instead of the pronoun of the third person and would thus tend to prevent permanent union of the verb and the pronoun, as has (I conjecture) been the case with English (and Gaelic) "is" and the pronoun subject.

[^10]:    $\dagger$ All the forms and definitions (except those enclosed within brackets[]) inserted under - a. or under -b. in the Alphabetic Exposition have been carefully selected from dictionaries and lexicons named in the list of Authorities given near the end of the present volume. To a few Hebrew words, I have assigned some definitions which were anciently accepted but which have been rejected by modern scholarship. Such definitions when seemingly reflected in Aryan or Basque cognates appear to me to deserve reconsideration.

Frequently some of these suffixes are combined or repeated. A vowel may be prefixed or suffixed to a root in the Aryan languages and B . (See section xir.).
    x . In this investigation, the aspiration of consonants and the quality and length of vowels have, in general, been provisionally treated as without philological value.
    xi. Under a given root, words or parts of words printed in small capitals (in italics if definitional) are to be considered descendants of that root and therefore cognate. Vowels are so printed only when lying within limits reflecting the root. (See also section x.).
    xii. The asterisk (*) as usual marks conjectured forms. Before H. and, A. words (Bib-lical), I use a dot (.) to mark such forms except those of verbs not found in "qal" or "p2(e)h ${ }^{4}$ al." Under - a. and under -b., matter added by me is enclosed within brackets [ ].

    i. Roots tend to become monosyllabic in the Aryan languages and B. (See section x.).
    ii. Radical gutturals (h, ha $\mathbf{h}^{3}, h^{4}$ ) are regularly lost in G., and are often lost (especially $\mathbf{h}$, $\mathbf{h}^{2}$ ) in the other Aryan languages and B. Radical $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}$ final are regularly quiescent in H. and unrepresented in the Aryan languages and $B$. (See section iII.).
    iii. Radical gutturals and palatals ( $\mathbf{h}, \mathbf{h}^{2}, \mathbf{h}^{3}, \mathbf{h}^{4} ; \mathbf{g}, \mathbf{k}, \mathbf{q}$ ) may become, in Go., A.-S., and L., h, $k(c, q), g$; or, $h w(v), k(c, q) w(v)$, (? $g w(v) ;$ or, $w(v, b, f, p$, in L.). (See sections III. and IV.).
    iv. Radical $\mathbf{v}, \mathbf{y}$, radical $\mathbf{n}$ initial, and radical $\mathbf{I}, \mathbf{m}, \mathbf{n}, \mathbf{r}$ final are often lost in the Aryan languages and $\mathrm{B}_{1}$ (See sections V . and vir.).
    $\mathbf{v}$. Radical liquids (1, m, n, r) are regularly represented by l, m, n, r (not always respectively) in the Aryan languages and B. (See section vir.).
    vi. Radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}$ become d, sd, s, st, $\mathbf{t}$, or (z) in the Aryan languages. (See section viri.).
    vii. In B., ch, tch, (cht), $s, t s,(s t), z, t z$, and (zt) are more or less freely interchanged and may each represent radical $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{z}^{2}, \mathbf{s}, \mathbf{s}^{2}, \mathbf{s}^{3}$.

[^108]:    $\dagger$ The accuracy of this reprint is in part due to the kindness of my friend and fellow-physician, Harry Phineas Packard, A. B., M. D., who carefully collated my transcript (made some years ago) with the printed copy here cited. Dr. Packard is now Medical Superintendent of Westminster Hospital, at Urumiah, Persia, under appointment from the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

[^109]:    $\dagger$ The investigation has been conducted without bias for any religious belief or scientific theory; but Biblical scholars and some scientists (particularly craniologists) will, in my opinion, be interested in the findings.
    §Notwithstanding our watchfulness, the second Basque word in entry 771 is printed incorrectly. The word was printed correctly in the "stone-proof," which was the eighth and last proof submitted to us.

[^110]:    $\dagger$ For specified indications of closer kinship of the Aryan tongues with Hebrew than with certain other Semitic tongues, see the first foot-note on page 7.
